ADLAI PROPOSES HEALTH PLAN

Should He Grasp Those Helping Hands?

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia. (AP)—After 40 minutes of entreaty, Clarence E. Robinson Jr., 27, decided Monday to grasp a helping hand and was hauled from a precarious perch on an overpass above busy railroad tracks near here.

Deputy Sheriff Wayne Moser pulled Robinson to safety.

Officers said they were called by Robinson's brother, Jerry, and a friend, who said Robinson was out of work and in debt.

The young man had been to the home of his father just before driving to the overpass. It is located on Highway 375 about a mile from here. Five sets of railroad tracks run beneath it.

After he had parked his car, Robinson headed for the center of the span and climbed over the side to a ledge. There he crouched.

Firemen answered a call for help with a safety net.

But Robinson didn't move.

Deputy Moser finally got Robinson's acquiescence to take a hand just about the time a train was due under the structure.

'I THOUGHT I'D FAINT'—PERFECT PITCHER

... It 'Hit' Him In The Ninth

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—"I was so weak in the knees out there in the ninth inning, I thought I was going to faint."

Big Don Larsen, admittedly "in a daze," said he also mumbled a little prayer for help before he finally completed his perfect no hit, no-run, no-man-to-first game against the Dodgers in the fifth World Series game.

It was the first no-hit game in World Series history and the first perfect game—no man reaching first—since another obscure pitcher, Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox, did it in 1922 against the Detroit Tigers.

Larsen said he realized in the seventh inning that he had a no-hitter going, but added: "I didn't get nervous—my main object was to win the game."

Felt Full Impact
"The thing I wanted to do was get out of the ninth inning," he said. "Once I mumbled a little prayer to myself, I said, 'Please help me get through this.'"

The towering righthander from San Diego, Calif., said nobody on the Yankee bench mentioned that he had a perfect game going.

"The only word said to me was by Yogi Berra," Larsen said. "Yogi hit me in the seat of the pants and said, 'Go out there and let's get the first batter.'"

Bedlam—Finally
The Yankee dressing room—the dressing room of the "old pros"—was bedlam for the first time during the series.

Yogi grabbed Larsen around the neck. Mickey Mantle, normally quiet and retiring, let out a resounding war whoop. Andy Carey, who made a beautiful play to help save the game, jumped around the room, yelling loudly.

"Beautiful, beautiful," said Casey Stengel, the Yankee manager, as he walked into the room with a broad smile. "This kid is a good pitcher."

O'Malley Came In
Walter O'Malley, the president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, came in. "You beat us and I'm not happy about that," he said, elbowing his way through the crowd around the beaming pitcher. "I have to congratulate you. Do me a favor will you? Sign this ball."

Larsen, who came to the Yankees in December, 1954, as a minor part of the 18-player deal with Baltimore, which brought the Yankees Bob Turley, said Berra's crafty signal-calling and the Yankees' fine defensive play deserve equal credit for his feat.

"I was pitching fast balls and sliders mostly," he said. "But mainly I had pretty good control. I only shook off a couple of Yogi's signals, but he stuck with them, so I went ahead and pitched what he called, I'm glad of it."

The 6-4, 225-pound Californian, said his heart sank when Sandy Amoros, the Brooklyn leftfielder, hit that shot in the fifth inning which went foul by inches into the right-field stands.

Umps Motivated "Foul"
"I thought sure he had it," Don said. "And I also thought Duke Snider's long foul in the fourth might have gone in. I was relieved when the ump's motioned 'foul.'"

Larsen was lavish in his praise of third-baseman Andy Carey, who before Monday had been the "goat" of the series with fielding errors and impotence at bat.

Ike To Hit Mistakes By Demos

President Plans Major Talk Tonight

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will fly to Pittsburgh Tuesday for a major address described in advance as dealing with campaign "mistakes" by the Democrats.

The speech will be broadcast and televised nationally (NBC) from Pittsburgh's Hunt Armory, beginning at 7 p.m. CST and lasting half an hour.

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has a cold, will not accompany the President.

Press secretary James C. Hagerty was asked at his news conference Monday what Eisenhower's Pittsburgh topic would be.

"Mistakes,"

"I would say," he replied, "that the President will take up some of the mis-statements that have been made in this campaign."

"By which side?" a questioner broke in, setting off giggles.

"By the opposition, and answer them factually," Hagerty concluded.

Asked whether Eisenhower would "take the high road, or the low road," Hagerty adopted much the same words Eisenhower had used in this connection at his own news conference last week.

"Hagerty said Eisenhower would take 'the road of truth.'"

Eisenhower spent much of the day working on the speech, and made no appointments for Tuesday.

Reporters engaged Hagerty in a discussion of election polls and Hagerty said the Republicans had some private polls which supplied the information that "it looks as if we're going to win."

But Hagerty said the same kind of polls showed, wrongly, that the Republicans were going to win in 1948 and "we don't put complete stock in them," adding that voters were naturally to be preferred to polls.

Blaze Damages Omaha Warehouse, Store
OMAHA (AP)—A used furniture store and warehouse were extensively damaged by fire Monday.

The business is owned by Clarence Grabenschorner.

Mrs. Grabenschorner said merchandise in the used furniture store, which also included some new furniture being stored, was almost a total loss.

Lincoln's Dallas Hunt Miss Rodeo America

From Press Dispatches

CHICAGO — Dallas Hunt, of Lincoln, Neb., beautiful and brainy 18-year-old freshman at the University of Nebraska, Tuesday night was named Miss Rodeo America at the International Dairy Show.

It was the second major individual award of the show to go to a Nebraska girl. Shari Lewis, an NU junior from Daykin, Neb., was chosen America Dairy Princess Sunday.

Miss Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hunt of 1900 So. 40th, had already been a rodeo queen eight times. She has won three queenships at Sutherland in the NACA and junior rodeos; two in state and national high school rodeos, one at Ak-Sar-Ben and two in the International Rodeo Association district contest in Burwell.

Besides competing in pole bending, barrel racing and break-away roping, she also shows her horses and last year won three first places and a fifth place in horsemanship in the American Royal at Kansas City. However, in Chicago she was riding not one of her own horses but one provided by the show.

She is a graduate of Lincoln High, where she was homecoming queen, secretary of the National High School Council, president of her own school's student council and an honor student. She is now a freshman at NU Teacher's College.

Accident Injuries Fatal; No Inquest Is Planned

Chief Dep. Co. Atty. Dale Fahrbruch said Monday the two-car collision which claimed the life of Robert W. Culver, 34, of 4204 L., was still under investigation but that no inquest would be held.

Culver, who died early Monday, was injured Sept. 29 in an accident on Cornhusker Highway between 9th and 10th. Drivers of the cars involved, police reported, were Robert L. Andersen, 24, of 1112 Rose and Francis J. Enright, 40, of 1229 Plum.

Culver was a passenger in the Andersen car. Five persons were injured in the accident but only Mrs. Irma Riley, 36, of 1213 F., remains hospitalized. A passenger in the Enright auto, she suffered a fractured ankle and is now listed in good condition at a local hospital.

The death of Culver boosted Lincoln's 1956 traffic death toll to nine, compared with one last year at this time. Lincoln recorded only two traffic deaths during the entire 1955 period. The Nebraska 1956 toll now stands at 232, compared with 234 last year at this time.

Culver, a Lincoln resident for three years, was employed as a mechanic with the Boneybright Air

CAR-PEDESTRIAN ACCIDENT HURTS BOY CRITICALLY

Five-year-old Robert Kniestadt of 814 So. 28th suffered a possible fractured skull, deep abrasions to the right eye and a ruptured left ear in a pedestrian-car collision in front of his home Monday.

He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital by ambulance where he was reported in critical condition, and partially conscious.

Police said the youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Kniestadt, came from behind a hedge and started crossing northeast on 22nd when he collided with the back right fender of a southbound car in 1955 driven by Mrs. Irene M. B. Pratt, 41, of 600 So. 28th.

FREEZING PREDICTED

The coldest air mass of the season so far moved into Nebraska early Tuesday and was to bring freezing temperatures across the state during the early morning hours.

The cold front, which moved southward out of central Canada, was to bring highs Tuesday in the 50s in northern Nebraska and in the 60s in the south, the Weather Bureau said.

Varying amounts of high cloudiness was expected but no precipitation is in sight, the Bureau said.

No precipitation was indicated for the next five-day period. The Lincoln area has a deficiency of .58 of an inch for the year, with a total of 21.75 inches of rainfall.

The five-day forecast showed warmer temperatures were expected Wednesday and cooler readings Thursday and Friday, turning warm again Saturday.

Shot Causes Injury.

Roger Earl Wieskamp, 19, of Hickman, was hospitalized at a Lincoln hospital after accidentally shooting himself in the chest with a pistol Monday night.

Deputy Secretary of State Roland Luedtke said a receipt for a $10 filing fee paid to the county treasurer in the replacement candidate's home county must accompany the filing.

Long received 25,883 votes in the May primary over two opponents: Harry Andreason of Omaha who received 18,923 votes and George E. Cornwall, also of Omaha, who received 13,141.

Long-time State Senator Dwight Burney of Hartington won the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor in a nip-and-tuck race with former State Treasurer Carl G. Swanson of Omaha. Marvin Griswold of Lincoln and Ernest M. Johnson of Chadron also were GOP candidates for the post.

ATLANTA, Ga. (INS)—Doctors Monday performed a long-delayed operation to remove the remaining cancerous eye of five-year-old Johnny Pair, and estimated the child's chances for life are a sonably good.

Little Johnny, whose plight of blindness or possible death attracted international attention, saw his divorced parents reunited at least momentarily before he entered a lifetime of darkness.

A month ago physicians told the parents that a malignant growth, evident when one eye was removed two years ago, had spread to the child's one remaining eye. He would likely die, doctors said, if the eye was not removed.

The child's father, Arnold Pair, found it difficult to reach a decision, and doctors would not operate without permission of both parents. Sunday night, Arnold Pair, after much prayer and thought, told the physicians to go ahead with the operation. Doctors relayed the word speedily to Mrs. Bessie Pair, who rushed Johnny to the hospital Monday morning.

The operation took only half-an-hour, after three hours of last-minute X-rays and laboratory tests. When it was over, a hospital bulletin said:

"His chances of cure from the growth are now reasonably good." The father and mother forgot their domestic disagreements briefly Monday, to have a final lunch with Johnny before he was wheeled into the operating room. Then they waited separately, each comforted by their own minister, until the operation was over.

Through the long hours of pre-surgery tests, Johnny was restless. He never has liked a hospital. But his mother and two of his aunts entertained him with games and spent most of the time cutting out paper dolls for him.

"This is the last time you'll have to stay in the hospital," Johnny was told by his mother, and that consoled him a bit. He was not told that he would come from the operating room blind for life.

4-Point Offer Underwrites Private Care

Stevenson Says Administration Should Be With States; Hits 'Socialized Medicine'

MEDICAL PROGRAM FOR ALL

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson Monday night proposed a four-point national health program calling for federal aid to guarantee hospital and medical care to all Americans.

The Democratic presidential nominee's proposals embraced federal loans and grants to underwrite full medical and health care through private plans regardless of ability to pay.

Stevenson emphasized that administration of the program should "rest with the states." He declared his opposition to "socialized medicine."

Stevenson made public his goals in a statement of "about 4,500 words issued from his farm home at nearby Libertyville." It came out a few hours after he prodded Democratic party fund raisers for more money to help him keep "hitting the Republicans hard."

The nominee made his plea in two long-distance telephone "conference calls," saying the Democrats are winning the campaign and must not "run out of gas."

Repeats Call

The first call at noon went to chairmen in 23 states and the District of Columbia in the East. Thirty minutes later he repeated the call to 25 state chairmen in the West.

He then settled down to work on a series of Far West speeches, starting Tuesday with a midday rally in Great Falls, Mont.

Stevenson said the concern of the Democratic party with the nation's health is not "an election year phenomenon" but a long standing one. He added:

"I am glad to say that most of the measures adopted by the Democratic Congress last year were recommended by President Eisenhower."

Here's Where Candidates Are

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This is what the major party presidential and vice-presidential candidates are doing Tuesday:

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER—Makes 10-minute speech from Pittsburgh over nationwide NBC radio-television networks 7 p.m. CST.

ADLAI STEVENSON—Speaks at rallies in Great Falls, Mont., Boise, Idaho and Seattle.

SEN. ESTES KEFAUVER—Tours New Jersey, with stops scheduled at Salem, Bridgewater, Millville, Vineland and Piquette, Pa., and New York City.

VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON—Tours Texas, with stops scheduled at Fort Worth, San Antonio and El Paso.

how and enjoyed bipartisan support, though it is fair to add that the President and his administration had opposed needed actions on several important fronts for three years, reversing themselves only in this election year."

Stevenson made a sharp distinction between "socialized medicine" and a program to make "comprehensive private health insurance available on a voluntary basis to all Americans so that no American will be denied good medical care for financial reasons."

Own Doctor
Stevenson emphasized there should be no restriction on the individual's freedom to choose his own doctor.

The other three major goals he outlined were:

"1. We must make sure that the medical research, which underlies all medical progress, is not held back by lack of funds."

"2. We must train enough doctors, dentists, specialists, nurses and other medical personnel so that all genuine needs for medical care can be met."

"3. We must build enough hospitals and other facilities that all genuine needs for institutional care can be satisfied."

It was an outwardly optimistic Stevenson who talked with his party chairmen in conference telephone calls.

Drug Store Robbed 2nd Time In 2 Months

OMAHA (AP)—An elderly drug store clerk was robbed Monday for the second time in as many months.

It was the fourth holdup this year at the Brown Park Pharmacy, where $100 from the cash register, $25 from the safe and $20 from clerk Newton Whitesell's wallet were taken.

Wheat Soil Bank—20,000 Farmers Sign Up

Maximum Payments In State $20 Million

By RICHARD FELLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The "land office business" was over for Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation offices in Nebraska Monday and the job of tallying the totals of acres in and dollars out was in process.

Near final total for the 1957 wheat crop entered into the soil bank records Monday was that:

1. Nearly 20,000 farmers across the state signed up for the program.

2. Maximum compensation for these acres will be over $12 million.

3. Many counties in the state requested additional funds—over and above those originally allocated.

4. The biggest single feature that seemed to attract most farmers, according to officials in the state ASC office, was the element of free crop insurance which is given by freedom to withdraw from the contracts until about the middle of December.

Can Drop Agreement
ASC officials explained that under recent interpretations of the soil bank, a farmer could—and many of them did—sign up for the wheat acreage reserve with the guarantee that he could either remain in, as agreed, or drop the entire agreement after he received his corn allotment or soil bank corn base.

In years past, these figures were received on the farm about the first of March, but this year ASC spokesmen said they had been given instructions to get the figures to the farmer by mid-December. Farmers will get these figures in time to make a decision on the corn referendum, which will decide the type of allotment and support program available to corn growers in the commercial corn belt.

Details about this election, the first of its type, were not available. Charley Clark, ASC official in charge of the coming election, said the state office had not yet received instructions on the election or on exactly what the election would place before the farmer.

Many Got Added Funds
Many counties requested and received additional funds during the rush to sign up, which came all day Friday. In addition to Gage County, which received the biggest single increase of $500,000, were:

Polk—originally had $253,911 and then received an extra $273,000.

Butler—receiving originally $397,043 and given an additional $450,000.

Roosar—receiving originally $78,686 and given an additional $125,000.

Nadine—increased from an original $42,562 to include an extra $60,000.

Gretna—received an extra $107,000 in addition to their original allocation of $28,832.

Nance—given $103,000 extra after originally receiving $158,491.

Nuckolls—received an extra $200,000 after an original $305,847.

Thayer—got an extra $300,000 after an original $321,167.

One ASC spokesman said these "were just the bigger counties" entering lands in the acreage reserve.

The figures of sign-ups released by state ASC officials were complete except for eleven counties in the state.

State Demos To Name Long Replacement

The State Democratic Central Committee will meet in Lincoln Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Cornhusker Hotel to name a replacement for Stanley D. Long as candidate for lieutenant governor. The meeting was called by State Democratic Chairman Willard Townsend of Lincoln. Long, 68-year-old retired Grand Island druggist, died at an Omaha hospital. Under Nebraska law, the party committee has until 20 days before the Nov. 6 general election to certify a candidate to fill the vacancy on the ballot. That would make the deadline Oct. 17, the same day on which all candidates and issues are to be certified on the ballot. Deputy Secretary of State Roland Luedtke said a receipt for a $10 filing fee paid to the county treasurer in the replacement candidate's home county must accompany the filing. 'I THOUGHT I'D FAINT' —PERFECT PITCHER

... It 'Hit' Him In The Ninth

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—"I was so weak in the knees out there in the ninth inning, I thought I was going to faint." Big Don Larsen, admittedly "in a daze," said he also mumbled a little prayer for help before he finally completed his perfect no hit, no-run, no-man-to-first game against the Dodgers in the fifth World Series game. It was the first no-hit game in World Series history and the first perfect game—no man reaching first—since another obscure pitcher, Charley Robertson of the Chicago White Sox, did it in 1922 against the Detroit Tigers. Larsen said he realized in the seventh inning that he had a no-hitter going, but added: "I didn't get nervous—my main object was to win the game." Felt Full Impact "The thing I wanted to do was get out of the ninth inning," he said. "Once I mumbled a little prayer to myself, I said, 'Please help me get through this.'" The towering righthander from San Diego, Calif., said nobody on the Yankee bench mentioned that he had a perfect game going. "The only word said to me was by Yogi Berra," Larsen said. "Yogi hit me in the seat of the pants and said, 'Go out there and let's get the first batter.'" Bedlam—Finally The Yankee dressing room—the dressing room of the "old pros"—was bedlam for the first time during the series. Yogi grabbed Larsen around the neck, Mickey Mantle, normally quiet and retiring, let out a resounding war whoop. Andy Carey, who made a beautiful play to help save the game, jumped around the room, yelling loudly. "Beautiful, beautiful," said Casey Stengel, the Yankee manager, his creased face breaking into a broad smile. "This kid is a good pitcher." O'Malley Came In Walter O'Malley, the president of the Brooklyn Dodgers came in. "You beat us and I'm not happy about that," he said, elbowing his way through the crowd around the beaming pitcher. "I have to congratulate you. Do me a favor will you? Sign this ball." Larsen, who came to the Yankees in December, 1954, as a minor part of the 18-player deal with Baltimore which brought the Yankees Bob Turley, said Berra's crafty signal-calling and the Yankees' fine defensive play deserve equal credit for his feat. "I was pitching fast balls and sliders mostly," he said. "But mainly I had pretty good control. I only shook off a couple of Yogi's signals, but he stuck with them, so I went ahead and pitched what he called. I'm glad of it." The 6-4, 225-pound Californian, said his heart sank when Sandy Amoros, the Brooklyn leftfielder, hit that shot in the fifth inning which went foul by inches into the right-field stands. Umps Motioned "Foul" "I thought sure he had it," Don said. "And I also thought Duke Snider's long foul in the fourth might have gone in. I was relieved when the umps motioned 'foul.'" Larsen was lavish in his praise of third-baseman Andy Carey, who before Monday had been the "goat" of the series with fielding errors and impotence at bat.

Lincoln's Dallas Hunt Miss Rodeo America

From Press Dispatches
CHICAGO — Dallas Hunt, of Lincoln, Neb., beautiful and brainy 18-year-old freshman at the University of Nebraska, Tuesday night was named Miss Rodeo America at the International Dairy Show. It was the second major individual award of the show to go to a Nebraska girl. Shari Lewis, an NU junior from Daykin, Neb., was chosen America Dairy Princess Sunday. Miss Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hunt of 1900 So. 40th, had already been a rodeo queen eight times. She has won three queenships at Sutherland in the NACA and junior rodeos; two in state and national high school rodeos, one at Ak-Sar-Ben and two in the International Rodeo Association district contest in Burwell. Besides competing in pole bending, barrel racing and break-away roping, she also shows her horses and last year won three first places and a fifth place in horsemanship in the American Royal at Kansas City. However, in Chicago she was riding not one of her own horses but one provided by the show. She is a graduate of Lincoln High, where she was homecoming queen, secretary of the National High School Council, president of her own school's student council and an honor student. She is now a freshman at NU Teacher's College.

Ike To Hit Mistakes By Demos

By J. W. DAVIS
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will fly to Pittsburgh Tuesday for a major address described in advance as dealing with campaign "mistakes" by the Democrats. The speech will be broadcast and televised nationally (NBC) from Pittsburgh's Hunt Armory, beginning at 7 p.m. CST and lasting half an hour. Mrs. Eisenhower, who has a cold, will not accompany the President. Press secretary James C. Hagerty was asked at his news conference Monday what Eisenhower's Pittsburgh topic would be. "Mistakes" "I would say," he replied, "that the President will take up some of the mis-statements that have been made in this campaign— "By which side?" a questioner broke in, setting off giggles. "—by the opposition, and answer them factually," Hagerty concluded. Asked whether Eisenhower would "take the high road, or the low road," Hagerty adopted much the same words Eisenhower had used in this connection at his own news conference last week. Hagerty said Eisenhower would take "the road of truth." Eisenhower spent much of the day working on the speech, and made no appointments for Tuesday. Reporters engaged Hagerty in a discussion of election polls and Hagerty said the Republicans had some private polls which supplied the information that "it looks as if we're going to win." But Hagerty said the same kind of polls showed, wrongly, that the Republicans were going to win in 1948 and "we don't put complete stock in them," adding that votes were naturally to be preferred to polls.

Here's Where Candidates Are

ADLAI STEVENSON — Speaks at rallies in Great Falls, Mont., Boise, Idaho and Seattle. SEN. VICE PRESIDENT RICHARD NIXON — Tours Texas, with stops scheduled at Fort Worth, San Antonio and El Paso.

lower and enjoyed bipartisan support, though it is fair to add that the President and his administration had opposed needed actions on several important fronts for three years, reversing themselves only in this election year."

Stevenson made a sharp distinction between "socialized medicine" and a program to make "comprehensive private health insurance available on a voluntary basis to all Americans so that no American will be denied good medical care for financial reasons."

Own Doctor

Stevenson emphasized there should be no restriction on the individual's freedom to choose his own doctor.

The other three major goals he outlined were:

- "1. We must make sure that medical research, which underlies all medical progress, is not held back by lack of funds.
- "2. We must train enough doctors, dentists, specialists, nurses and other medical personnel so that all genuine needs for medical care can be met.
- "3. We must build enough hospitals and other facilities that all genuine needs for institutional care can be satisfied."

It was an outwardly optimistic Stevenson who talked with his party chairmen in conference telephone calls.

4-Point Offer Underwrites Private Care

MEDICAL PROGRAM FOR ALL

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
CHICAGO (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson Monday night proposed a four-point national health program calling for federal aid to guarantee hospital and medical care to all Americans.

The Democratic presidential nominee's proposals embraced federal loans and grants to underwrite full medical and health care through private plans regardless of ability to pay.

Stevenson emphasized that administration of the program should "rest with the states." He declared his opposition to "socialized medicine."

Stevenson made public his goals in a statement of "about 4,500 words issued from his farm home at nearby Libertyville. It came out a few hours after he prodded Democratic party fund raisers for more money to help him keep "hitting the Republicans hard."

The nominee made his plea in two long-distance telephone "conference calls," saying the Democrats are winning the campaign and must not "run out of gas."

Repeats Call The first call at noon went to chairmen in 23 states and the District of Columbia in the East. Thirty minutes later he repeated the call to 25 state chairmen in the West.

He then settled down to work on a series of Far West speeches, starting Tuesday with a midday rally in Great Falls, Mont.

Stevenson said the concern of the Democratic party with the nation's health is not "an election year phenomenon" but a long standing one. He added:

"I am glad to say that most of the measures adopted by the Democratic Congress last year were recommended by President Eisenhower."

Can Drop Agreement ASC officials explained that under recent interpretations of the soil bank, a farmer could—and many of them did—sign up for the wheat acreage reserve with the guarantee that he could either remain in, as agreed, or drop the entire agreement after he received his corn allotment or soil bank corn base.

In years past, these figures were received on the farm about the first of March, but this year ASC spokesmen said they had been given instructions to get the figures to the farmer by mid-December. Farmers will get these figures in time to make a decision on the corn referendum, which will decide the type of allotment and support program available to corn growers in the commercial corn belt.

Details about this election, the first of its type, were not available. Charley Clark, ASC official in charge of the coming election, said the state office had not yet received instructions on the election or on exactly what the election would place before the farmer.

Many Got Added Funds

Many counties requested and received additional funds during the rush to sign up, which came all day Friday. In addition to Gage County, which received the biggest single increase of $500,000 were:

- Polk—which originally had $283,911 and then received an extra $275,000.
- Butler—received originally $397,043 and given an additional $450,000.
- Boone—received originally $78,688 and given an additional $125,000.
- Madison—increased from an original $42,562 to include an extra $50,000.
- Greeley—received an extra $107,300 in addition to their original allocation of $88,852.
- Nance—given $105,000 extra after originally receiving $158,491.
- Nuckolls—received an extra $290,000 after an original $103,567.
- Thayer—got an extra $300,000 after an original $321,167.

One ASC spokesman said these "were just the bigger counties" entering lands in the acreage reserve. The figures of sign-ups released by state ASC officials, were complete except for eleven counties in the state.

Canal Talks To Be Secret

6-Nation Committee Starts Negotiations On Tuesday

... Egypt, Russia Join In Proposal

By PIERRE J. HUSS
UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INS)—Egypt and Russia asked the U. N. Security Council Monday to attempt a peaceful solution of the Suez Canal dispute by appointing a negotiating committee consisting of the three Western powers, Egypt, Russia and India.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi and Soviet Foreign Chief Dmitri Shepilov both rejected the Anglo-French proposal for U. N. endorsement of Western plans for internationalizing the canal.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles deferred his address to the Security Council until Tuesday to study the Soviet-Egyptian endorsement of a British proposal for hush-hush talks on the question.

Dulles, while supporting the Anglo-French resolution, is pressing for a negotiated settlement that would avoid a certain Soviet veto of the Western proposal.

Begin Tuesday
The president of the Security Council, French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, announced at the close of the session that the Council would begin at 4 p. m. Tuesday, secret talks on the Suez dispute, as proposed by British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd on Friday.

Iran, China, Australia, Cuba and Peru endorsed the idea of closed-door meetings.

Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak, siding with Britain and France, blasted Egypt's "fait accompli" in nationalizing the canal without prior warning.

Chinese Nationalist Ambassador Tingfu F. Tsiang said "some measure" of international participation in the waterway's operation did not violate Egypt's sovereignty.

Copies of U. S. Note
Dulles meanwhile asked the Council president to circulate to all 11-member governments copies of the U. S. July 19 note to Egypt announcing withdrawal of the American offer to help finance the huge Aswan Dam project on the Nile. Seizure of the canal followed one week later.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Fawzi, without disclosing any proposals he reportedly has brought from Cairo on the question, suggested that the proposed closed-door discussions consider:

1. Establishment of a system of operation of the canal which would recognize Egypt's sovereignty over the nationalized waterway and the interests of all canal users.
2. Setting up of a toll system which would ensure fairness for nations using the canal.
3. Providing for a reasonable percentage of canal revenues for its improvement.

Shepilov proposed that the six-nation committee for the secret talks could draft a new Convention replacing that of 1888 and organize a broad conference of all canal users to approve the new canal treaty.

Shepilov endorsed India's plan for a consultative body to help Egypt in operating the waterway which would remain under strict Egyptian control.

City Considers Property Deal At 21st & O

The City Council has under consideration a proposal for an exchange of properties at 21st and O to facilitate straightening of the jog in 21st at that point.

The proposal calls for the city to obtain from Ted Franks a triangular piece of the vacant lot at the southwest corner of 21st and O. In return, the city will pay Franks $15,000 and give him title to that part of the existing 21st St. which is to be vacated between O and N.

After the exchange, 21st is to be directed at a northwest angle from N to enter O directly opposite of 21st on the north side of O.

County NFO To Hear Ton-Mile Story Thursday

The Lancaster County National Farm Organization will hold a county meeting Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Rogers Room at the YWCA. NFO officials said Monday.

George Spidel, chairman of the Nebraska Producers and Consumers Committee, will speak in opposition to the proposed ton-mile tax in Nebraska.

Sen. Lester Anderson of Aurora will speak in favor of the proposal, which appears on the ballot in November.

A question period with audience participation will follow the address. Farmers who are not NFO members are welcome, officials said.

The NFO will select delegates and alternates to the First Congressional District convention to be held at Lincoln. Other business connected with the convention will be handled at a business meeting prior to Spidel's address which is scheduled for 8:30 p. m.

Morley Shows Optimism On Russ Trends

Foreign Correspondent John Morley said Monday night that he had "never before returned to his native country with as many prospects for optimism or hopes for peace."

Cautioning not to push this trend too far, the noted columnist and lecturer nevertheless pointed out several chinks in the Iron Curtain which he detected on the basis of personal experiences and repeated coverage in these areas for 25 years.

Signs of encouragement in Russia were the opening of many new churches, the unrestricted sale of Bibles and the vast increase in people going to church, Morley told the Lincoln Dinner Club.

In documenting his assertions Morley mentioned that 5,670 Baptist Union Churches were now in existence as compared to 1800 in 1933; a Christian Bible could be purchased in any book store, and according to a high-ranking Greek Orthodox bishop, Christians in Russia numbered nearly 253 million.

Noting, at the Summit Conference of July, 1955, that Mrs. Marshall Zhukov's wife wore a crucifix around her neck, Morley said that he was prompted to find out later that both she and Marshal Zhukov were Christians.

"This is in itself also encouraging," Morley said, "but it is believed by some that the Zhukov family will visit the United States should President Eisenhower be re-elected."

Another reason for optimism, Morley suggested, is that the Communists still do not allow free elections. "And until we see a free election behind the Iron Curtain," he continued, "we can never be convinced that Communism is winning anybody."

firm, Frederick Opitz, said he was in his second floor office when a radiator started to hiss, the floor heaved up and upset his chair and threw him under his desk as the roof collapsed.

The explosion left an 86 foot square pile of debris. Part of the second floor collapsed onto the first floor and then into the basement.

Dug at Rubble
For over an hour more than 100 rescue workers feverishly dug at the rubble believing at least six persons were trapped.

"I knew the building was blowing up," office worker F. E. Garriot said, "and I ducked under my desk. After that there was nothing I could do. I just rode the floor down to the basement."

Garriot was not seriously injured. There was no fire following the explosion.

The part of the administration building destroyed by the blast was a new annex that housed the mimeographing and filing departments in the basement and sales departments on the two upper floors.

A girl that escaped from the basement seconds before the blast said she heard a "loud hissing noise." Buildings near by were not damaged.

HST 'Disgusted' By Reports Nixon Better Qualified As V.P. Than Late Barkley

Truman Tells Rally 'I'm Back of Adlai'

PITTSBURGH (U) — Former President Harry S. Truman said Monday night he experiences a "personal disgust" when hearing reports that Vice President Nixon is "better qualified" than the late Vice President Alben Barkley for that office.

"... I must confess that I suffer a special kind of personal disgust when anyone asserts that Nixon is better qualified than Alben Barkley, who was one of the greatest Americans who ever lived," Truman said.

Truman made the remark at a political rally here which set off a round of formal and informal talks Truman will make in the Pittsburgh district in his effort to help elect Adlai Stevenson president.

On arrival at the airport Truman was asked by newsmen about a statement attributed to James Hagerly, presidential press secretary, in which the White House official said Truman "is on our side" on the question of continued testing of hydrogen weapons.

"Back of Adlai!" Truman answered.

However, he added that "We can't possibly quit nuclear tests till this Russian business is under control." Stevenson has said this nation should take the lead in halting or limiting testing of nuclear weapons.

A capacity crowd of nearly 2,000 heard Truman's speech at the Carnegie Music Hall in the Oakland section. He was interrupted frequently by shouts of "Give 'em Hell Harry."

Enroute to the hall the Truman motorcade stopped in the hill district and Truman spoke to a crowd of about 1,500, many of them Negroes. He said civil rights legislation "will suffer" if the Republicans win the election.

Cloud 9

In his speech Truman referred to President Eisenhower by saying:

"In the beginning of this campaign, it seems, Ike was planning to sit the election out—up on cloud No. 9.

"He was just going to smile amiably and make a few public appearances, and then, according to the script, everybody was supposed to vote for him.

"However, after the campaign got started, some things began to happen that were not written into Ike's script at all."

'JOURNALISM A NOBLE PROFESSION BECAUSE IT SERVES OTHERS'—HALL

The story of newspaper business is the story of men and women who believe that journalism is a post of honor, Dr. William Hall, director of the school of journalism at the University of Nebraska, said Monday.

It is the story of men and women, he continued, who believe that "the newspaper commands something extraordinary in the way of ability, that a journalist must not only be honest but that he must think with integrity, that the profession is noble because it serves interests other than its own."

Dr. Hall spoke before a group of newspaper personnel from Lincoln and the surrounding territory at a dinner given annually by the Elks Lodge in recognition of Newspaper Week.

Supplies Information

A fact is not a fact, Dr. Hall said, until it is placed in a person's mind. No one would have any knowledge of the H-bomb test, action of the state legislature or a decision made by the City Council, he asserted, "were it not for the newspaper profession which stocks the world with these kinds of facts."

Thus it is, he said, that journalism is the most important single profession in the world today.

Dr. Hall compared the press to a beam of light, moving carefully from darkness to light. And the history of the press, he explained, is the history of men who have been striving to find out what is going on in the world.

Significant Men

This history of men has been particularly impressive in the development of the American press, he commented, pointing out that it has been significant "not only in birth but in actual parenthood."

Dr. Hall traced the progress of journalism in the United States in terms of its strong personalities, paying particular attention to these distinguished newsmen:

Benjamin Franklin, Samuel Adams and Benjamin Day, who first made the newspaper available to the common man by issuing a "penny press."

Elihu P. Lovejoy, the religious journalist, who was killed for his strong anti-slavery editorials.

Horace Greeley, whose New York Tribune was read "second only to the Bible."

Sarah Haley, the first great woman editor, who persuaded Lincoln to set aside a day for Thanksgiving.

Joseph Pulitzer, who rose to newspaper fame with the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and New York World, and later established the famous Pulitzer Prize.

Roy Howard, until last year president of the United Press, who was the first Western correspondent to interview Stalin.

Ernie Pyle, Second World War correspondent, who was content "only when he was writing about the war from the front lines."

Joe Rosenthal, maverick newspaperman, who caught the immortal picture of the GIs raising the flag on Iwo Jima.

Journalist Rogers, affiliated with the Atlanta Journal, who, though he walked on crutches for 50 years, "... never wrote a bad word about anyone."

It is in men like these, Hall said, that we find the key to the history of journalism as it has come down to us today.

Tom Connelly, advertising salesman, served as master of ceremonies. Officers of the Elks Lodge were introduced at the meeting.

In addition to local editors and publishers, special guests from out-of town included Henry Mead, publisher of the Seward Independent, and R. E. Clark, publisher of the Bennett Sun.

Larsen's No Hitter

Perhaps the most pleasing reflection provided by Don Larsen's no hitter against Brooklyn in the fifth game of the World Series is that the young man came back after being belted in his first appearance to pitch a perfect game—something that has never happened in a World Series heretofore.

That must have taken a lot of doing on the part of a stout heart as well as a superb physical performance. Young Mr. Larsen—for in terms of major league experience he is young—had a lot of help from his team mates. Twice it was superb fielding that preserved Larsen's amazing record. At all times Sal Maglie was breathing hard on Larsen's heels, pitching an excellent game himself. That never adds to peace of mind.

This 1956 World Series will go down in the books as one of the unforgettable events of its kind. It has been impartial in the distribution of honors to young and old. Larsen rates a comparative youngster, having been with Baltimore, then the Yanks, then Denver and finally back to the Yanks.

On the elderly side Enos Slaughter and Sal Maglie have upheld age magnificently. Then, of course, there has been the slugging of young Mickey Mantle.

Regular As The Weather

A Monday wrap-up of week-end traffic fatalities in Nebraska is becoming as institutionalized in the Nebraska newspaper field as is the weather forecast.

The past week-end was no exception. Three more Nebraskans died to bring the year's total to 232, and that is only two less than the number who lost their lives over the corresponding period in 1955.

A study of the death conditions revealed nothing new. A man was hit in the middle of the street. Two cars collided at a highway intersection. The latter is quite a common cause in Nebraska. Stop signs are not seen or are ignored. Blind corners contribute their share, too.

State Can Have $388,769

The federal apportionment of $21 million to aid in development of state wildlife and sports fishery projects will make available to Nebraska $388,769 the coming year.

There is a suggestion in this to the state highway department—more prominent caution signs at a greater distance from the intersection—something strikingly visible in advance of the stop sign itself.

As one travels the Nebraska highways and notes the clusters of roadside signs that mark where a fatality has occurred it is noteworthy that so many of them indicate a nearby section of road that tempts accidents. Urgent steps to eliminate such traps unquestionably will have its effects on the state's highway mortality table.

In this crusade for safety nothing should be overlooked that will save as much as one life and efforts must not cease until every preventable accident has been forestalled.

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

A recent issue of a publication dedicated to American history presents an article seemingly deserving of some comment, because it deals, at a time when the nation's agriculture is being buffeted by the winds of political oratory, with a combination of American ingenuity and America's rich soil. Under the title, "Sheaves of Golden Grain," Professor Marshall Fishwick of Washington and Lee University writes in "American Heritage" of the story of Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper, which in a very large sense made it possible for "the farmer to reap as much as he could sow."

It is a warming story in the best American tradition. It tells of the emigrant family which left crowded Philadelphia, in the late 18th century, went to the frontier of Virginia, found there the fertile land and rolling hills in the shadows of the Blue Ridge Mountains. With the toil of their hands the family made the land bloom, through back-breaking laboring became well-to-do. There was a son in that family with an inventive turn of mind, who in the mounting prosperity it enjoyed came up with a machine which not only lightened the labors of the harvest but brought to the farmer the advantages of the industrial revolution—enabling rural America to produce the food for America's growing cities. "Few things could have benefited the young republic as much," Professor Fishwick wrote, for it "touched one of mankind's basic needs—its food." Cyrus McCormick's invention and his persistence in getting it manufactured and into the hands of the farmer, "made it possible to feed the multitudes." All that seems remote if not absurd today in these days of punishing surpluses. Actually, however, farm policy discussion reaches back to abundance and scarcity. We have better tools or equipment today for abundance than ever before. We still find it necessary in many areas to defer to nature's favor. But scarcity then was a very important factor, and scarcity again can become a matter of concern. West of the Missouri as late as the early fifties the question was one of food.

Speaking in Lincoln recently to a small group gathered around the luncheon table, former Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan noted that "if by some miracle all of the food in the world at this present time could be divided evenly among all the peoples of the world there would be those who would go to bed hungry." The surpluses which disturb Secretary Benson so greatly under developing circumstances not yet foreseen could become a grateful heritage of this nation.

There has been much talk of the evil of abundance—to phrase it differently than it is now projected in terms of depressing surpluses. When it comes to agriculture and the production of food is it to be said that we have reached the point in this nation's history that there is a penalty to be imposed upon the hard work and the inventiveness of the American people? Is it the time for politicians to be talking of "crippling surpluses?" In a hungry world is all of this criticism of mountains of grain, depressing the rural areas, forcing farmers from their fields, in order? Or because the very abundance of American agriculture is this abundance a source of strength and not of weakness? There would not be a debate were America's farms producing too little. On the contrary, there would be real cause for worry. Perhaps instead of so much thought of surpluses we should be thankful that we continue to produce so abundantly and that which we produce—food—is basic of life itself.

Thus far it has been the American story that even a small surplus has been ruinous to the farmer. Somewhere in between there ought to be a compromise. When it comes to the small or to the family-sized farm this matter of curbing and limiting its production is at least worth a second thought.

Drawbacks

Science has announced perfection of an atomic clock so accurate that it will not vary more than five seconds in 300 years. Just what we have been looking for. But there are two small disadvantages. The lowest priced model, without a fancy case, will sell at $50 thousand and the most compact model is about the size of a filing cabinet.

Vaccine Charges Claimed Boosted

WASHINGTON — The Fountain subcommittee of Congress is about to explode a new polio-vaccine scandal. Congressman L. H. Fountain (D. N.C.) will hold hearings beginning Wednesday on how the polio companies allegedly conspired to overcharge the government for polio vaccine. Millions of dollars are involved.

Congressman Fountain points out that the 84th Congress appropriated $44 million for the purchase of vaccine, plus another $7 million that could be used for buying vaccine or for administrative costs.

His investigators find that the largest of the vaccine producers, Eli Lilly & Co., presumably set the price on bidding. From October, 1955 to February, 1956, Lilly bid $7.13 for 9 cc's. The other four vaccine producers bid $7.12.

From February 1956 until June 30, 1956, Lilly bid $6.34 for 9 cc's. All the other companies bid one cent lower, namely $6.33. For the June 30, 1956, to June, 1957, period, all five companies bid $5.70 for 9 cc's.

The other four companies are Wyeth Laboratories, Sharp & Dohme, Pitman & Moore, and Parke-Davis.

The Fountain Committee will charge that these five companies got together to set high prices for vaccine, because they knew of the terrific public demand and because they also knew that the government had appropriated ample money.

Basil O'Connor, chairman of the Polio Foundation, has informed me that he borrowed $9,000,000 to advance to the drug companies to get them to manufacture the Salk vaccine in large quantities. O'Connor said he was sure from advance experiments that the Salk vaccine was sound, and he wanted the children of the nation to get it just as soon as possible.

Prior to this, the drug companies had not been willing to take a chance on mass production. Dr. Jonas Salk had patiently propositioned some of the top drug companies, but all except Parke-Davis in Detroit turned him down. They weren't ready to invest any money in advance, wanted to be sure they had a hard-and-fast proposition.

It was after this that Basil O'Connor borrowed $9,000,000 and advanced it to the drug companies. However, out of the first amount they produced, the first 500,000 cc's did not go to the polio foundation, which advanced the money, but was shipped to the drug companies' regular commercial distributors.

Since then the Eli Lilly company in Indianapolis has almost trebled its profits. It announced that last year's profits jumped from $6,800,000 to $16,600,000.

Senator Kefauver has cut down on his smoking. Now puffs six cigarettes a day. He used to be a chain smoker. The League of United Latin American citizens representing Spanish-American citizens in this country has passed the word to its members to vote against Vice President Nixon. They don't like his record on civil rights. Prime Minister Nehru has agreed to visit the White House in December for his long-delayed conference with President Eisenhower. If Eisenhower is defeated in the election, Nehru will spend more time talking with Stevenson than with Ike. If the Democrats win, he will try to persuade them to send Chester Bowles, ex-governor of Connecticut, back as ambassador to India.

Adlai Pressures Nixon And Ike

WASHINGTON — Adlai Stevenson has set the pace and tone of this campaign in a display of great energy and versatility.

He has forced President Eisenhower to campaign as head of the Republican party. He has so intimidated Vice President Nixon that Nixon's new look is the wonder and awe of reporters who knew him when.

Republican candidates within the states are grabbing for the Eisenhower coat-tails and are pressing him to make the hard efforts they solemnly promised him several months ago would not be the least bit necessary. Most observers now expect a history-making Democratic Congress.

But they feel too that while Stevenson has been, to coin a phrase, closing the gap, he has still to overtake the President. It is quite a task. Eisenhower's 1952 plurality was nearly six and one-half million votes and they were so well distributed he got an electoral landslide.

It may be too that Eisenhower as a campaigner and the new Nixon will help the Republican ticket. For example, the President's display of energy has been a decided damper on the health issue; when traveling, one seldom hears it mentioned. Perhaps Nixon on the high road quest, doubts about him also, though it seems most of all to reassure those who intended to vote for Eisenhower but were apologetic about the vice president. The traveler still finds anti-Nixon vehemence.

Stevenson had to take that chance in order to get the campaign off the ground. How he has to keep up the grueling schedule and endless efforts which evoked the effect he desired. He thinks he can do it, but the evening appearances are clearly a strain.

His greatest problem stems from his anxiety to be honest. He tries to get in too much of his story, too many facts and figures. He shuns the short word as too ugly; when he wishes to characterize something as an untruth, he calls it "a gross misrepresentation of the facts," a phrase which was in his Pittsburgh telecast.

The result is that the voter has still to get a clear image of Stevenson and what he stands for. This is a great handicap when he must oppose the great white father, a role in which the President has so admirably succeeded the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. Democrats do a good deal of complaining about Eisenhower in that role and one brought it up recently in the presence of Mrs. Roosevelt. She only smiled and said, "Well, I seem to remember that Franklin used it rather successfully too. We are not perhaps entitled to complain."

Hence, 40-year-old Country Slaughter, who surmamed the Burns in the third game, is generally portrayed by his elders among the writers as of the same age and time as that 167-year-old Colombian who recently came to New York to slug reporters.

Sal Maglie, 39, is written about as if he is a contemporary of Bernard M. Baruch. Though he is four years younger than Richard M. Nixon, the Boy Wonder of politics, Salvatore's physical condition continues to amaze older writers.

His pitching arm is spoken of as something resembling a petrified banana stalk. Writers who become exhausted walking from the hotel door to a cab can get pretty sentimental over 37-year-old Jackie Robinson's legs, which, miraculously, still support him.

It's a commentary, of course, on the mean span of years during which a man can play the game well enough to make it to the big leagues.

And perhaps, too, there is some Walter Mitty mixed in there. The night Dempsey flattened Sharkey an elderly Western Union operator at ringside leaped up, pounded his fist on the ring apron, and kept yelling, "They can't beat us old guys."

There have been racing writers who have written long questions, and answer interviews with say, Count Fleet, though I rode from Louisville to Cincinnati in the Count's car after he won the Derby and the bum never opened his yap except to eat.

There are golf writers who brag if they shoot a 90, after abusing some pro for "blowing up" with a 73.

The current World Series has produced a pretty good crop of literate ballplayers and over-worked ghosts. But 10-20-30 years ago everybody connected with a series had a story on the wire, including the bat boys and locker room assistant rubbers. Ford Frick wrote tens of thousands of words under Babe Ruth's byline through the years.

In the 1925 series between Washington and Pittsburgh the ghost of Walter Johnson, Goose Goslin and, I believe, Sam Rice got so steamed up at an umpire's decision they put a loud blast on the guy in behalf of the players. Judge Landis angrily summoned the players when he read theirs (none of them had read the stuff) and almost tossed them out of the series.

Jimmy Foxx was signed up years ago to report a Philadelphia series. He sought out his spook on the night before the first game. The guy was busy writing his impressions of Foxx's outlook. Jimmy waited for a time, then said, "Can I make a suggestion?" "Don't hurt no one."

The Turners were astonished to find Plato actually enjoyed playing with his dog toys. Their two previous dogs had walked away from such things as a rubber bone or ball.

Plato should grow into quite a well-mannered canine. He has plenty of supervision under the watchful eye of Della, his part-color neighborhood playmate. If Plato jumps into a sandpile where Della knows he should not be, she will chase him off with a bark. Plato

The spaniel is going to be a good duck hunter some day, the Turners feel, because Plato likes the water. He runs joyfully in the rain and nothing pleases him more than to jump into a water hole after a rain and splash about.

The Turner family was broken-hearted last December when their beloved German shepherd was killed by a car. The children were all for another German shepherd right away. But Lt. David Turner was sent on temporary duty so the family was forced to wait.

Lt. Turner decided the next dog would be not only a watch dog but also a hunting dog. Plato was picked out as the largest of the litter. The playful companion, the Turners believe, was worth waiting for.

On Reclamation

Washington, D.C.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I was deeply interested in your editorial, "Of Men And Things," relating your position on irrigation and reclamation, and the need therefore in Nebraska. I heartily agree with you on this basic principle.

I must, however, disagree with this statement in that editorial:

"Since the Eisenhower Administration came into power, the friends of reclamation in this region to the West of the Missouri have recognized that fewer new projects have been undertaken. There has been very little money set aside by the Eisenhower Budget Bureau to initiate new reclamation developments."

As you know, I have been a member of the House Interior and Insular Affairs committee for 14 years. This committee, of course, has jurisdiction over irrigation and reclamation matters, so I have followed, very closely, the progress that has been made in this field.

The Budget Bureau, in 1946, when Mr. Truman was in the White House, initiated a "no new reclamation starts" policy. This position was reaffirmed each year thereafter during Truman's administration.

The Democratic eighty-first Congress wrote into the 1951 Appropriation Act the authority to cut back specific appropriations for reclamation projects, and Truman subsequently issued a "no new starts" order which was in effect when the Eisenhower Administration came into office.

During these years a few projects were authorized by the Congress but without Budget Bureau approval; and the reclamation appropriations were almost solely for those projects in the Central Valley, the Columbia Basin and the Missouri Basin authorized prior to the mid 1940s.

The Eisenhower Budget Bureau, on the other hand, has recently approved some 40 irrigation, reclamation, flood control and power projects, costing in the neighborhood of $1.6 billion.

Since the planning and development authority of the Bureau of Reclamation had been seriously curtailed for many years under previous policy, relatively few new starts ($56 million) got under way during the 83rd Congress. In the past two years, however, the Budget Bureau has approved, and Congress has authorized these notable projects:

- 1.—Upper Colorado—Providing irrigation water for 124,000 new acres, supplemental water for 234,000 acres, and 5.5 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually. The cost $740 million.
- 2.—Trinity River, California—Cost $225 million. Provides an additional 1.19 million acre-feet of water for Central Valley, California, and over 1 billion kw-hr of electricity annually.
- 3.—Washoe Project, Nevada—Cost $43.5 million. Provides water for 2,000 new acres, supplemental water for 15,000 acres, and 36 million kw-hr electricity annually.
- 4.—Washita Project, Oklahoma—Cost $40.6 million. Provides 400,000 acre-feet of water for irrigation, municipal and industrial water, and flood control.
- 5.—Furnell Project, Nebraska—Cost $28.5 million. Provides water for 32,500 new acres.
- 6.—Ventura Project, California—Cost $37.7 million. Provides water for 29,200 new acres.
- 7.—Alamogordo Project, Nebraska—Cost $28 million. Provides water for 34,000 new acres.
- 8.—Crooked River Project, Oregon—Cost $6.6 million. Provides water for 20,000 new acres, adds 31,000 acre-feet for supplemental irrigation.
- 9.—Little Wood River Project, Idaho—Cost $1.9 million. Provides supplemental water for 3,550 acres.
- 10.—Wapinitia Project, Oregon—Cost $240,000. Provides supplemental water for 2,100 acres.

These projects were Budget-approved. Administration-supported and Congress-enacted. In addition, the President, the Budget Bureau, and the Department of the Interior, requested $5.5 million to start construction of the Fort Randall-Grand Island 230-KV transmission line which, as you know, was opposed and killed by the chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

The Administration likewise requested the $156 million Frying-Pan-Arkansas Project in Colorado, but the House leadership did not permit this legislation to come to the floor.

Two other landmark pieces of legislation were recently adopted, with Eisenhower Budget Bureau approval, namely the Small Projects Act, and the Irrigation Distributions System Act.

These are P. L. 894, and P. L. 520, respectively. To reclamationists these acts are important victories, since legislation of this type had been introduced in many Congresses prior to its adoption.

Again, let me say, you and I have a common ground in our deep belief in developing the natural resources of our country through irrigation and reclamation. We can also disagree, honestly and sincerely, in our political thinking, without losing any of this friendly spirit.

But I do hope that we will not let partisanship enter into our appraisal of the position and the accomplishments and the victories that have been won for our common cause.

In reviewing the record of concrete actions, as well as pronouncements, it is obvious that the Eisenhower administration has put new life and vigor into the reclamation program, helping to rescue it from the stagnation and degeneration that existed for several years prior to 1953.

We must continue to tell the reclamation story so future generations will have an improved food supply, security and opportunity.

'Around The Corner'

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The farmers, after four years of Republicans in office, are still being told their prosperity is "just around the corner." They are also told a good rain would solve their troubles. The flexible price support system has meant lower prices for what he has to sell and higher prices for what he has to buy. Lack of rain is not what caused the farmers to market their livestock at a loss last fall. Unless a better solution to their problems is found a big percent of the farmers will go broke as they did during the Hoover administration.

Larsen's No Hitter

Perhaps the most pleasing reflection provided by Don Larsen's no hitter against Brooklyn in the fifth game of the World Series is that the young man came back after being belted in his first appearance to pitch a perfect game—something that has never happened in a World Series heretofore.

That must have taken a lot of doing on the part of a stout heart as well as a superb physical performance. Young Mr. Larsen—for in terms of major league experience he is young—had a lot of help from his team mates. Twice it was superb fielding that preserved Larsen's amazing record. At all times Sal Maglie was breathing hard on Larsen's heels, pitching an excellent game himself. That never adds to peace of mind.

This 1956 World Series will go down in the books as one of the unforgettable events of its kind. It has been impartial in the distribution of honors to young and old. Larsen rates a comparative youngster, having been with Baltimore, then the Yanks, then Denver and finally back to the Yanks.

On the elderly side Enos Slaughter and Sal Maglie have upheld age magnificently. Then, of course, there has been the slugging of young Mickey Mantle.

Regular As The Weather

A Monday wrap-up of week-end traffic fatalities in Nebraska is becoming as institutionalized in the Nebraska newspaper field as is the weather forecast.

The past week-end was no exception. Three more Nebraskans died to bring the year's total to 232, and that is only two less than the number who lost their lives over the corresponding period in 1955.

A study of the death conditions revealed nothing new. A man was hit in the middle of the street. Two cars collided at a highway intersection. The latter is quite a common cause in Nebraska. Stop signs are not seen or are ignored. Blind corners contribute their share, too.

There is a suggestion in this to the state highway department—more prominent caution signs at a greater distance from the intersection—something strikingly visible in advance of the stop sign itself.

As one travels the Nebraska highways and notes the clusters of roadside signs that mark where a fatality has occurred it is noteworthy that so many of them indicate a nearby section of road that tempts accidents. Urgent steps to eliminate such traps unquestionably will have its effects on the state's highway mortality table.

In this crusade for safety nothing should be overlooked that will save as much as one life and efforts must not cease until every preventable accident has been forestalled.

State Can Have $388,769

The federal apportionment of $21 million to aid in development of state wildlife and sports fishery projects will make available to Nebraska $388,769 the coming year.

Interior Department Secretary Fred Seaton's announcement divided the Nebraska apportionment on a basis of $78,841 for fishery projects and $309,928 for wildlife resources.

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

A recent issue of a publication dedicated to American history presents an article seemingly deserving of some comment, because it deals, at a time when the nation's agriculture is being buffeted by the winds of political oratory, with a combination of American ingenuity and America's rich soil. Under the title, "Sheaves of Golden Grain," Professor Marshall Fishwick of Washington and Lee University writes in "American Heritage" of the story of Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper, which in a very large sense made it possible for "the farmer to reap as much as he could sow."

It is a warming story in the best American tradition. It tells of the emigrant family which left crowded Philadelphia, in the late 18th century, went to the frontier of Virginia, found there the fertile land and rolling hills in the shadows of the Blue Ridge Mountains. With the toil of their hands the family made the land bloom, through back-breaking labors became well-to-do. There was a son in that family with an inventive turn of mind, who in the mounting prosperity it enjoyed came up with a machine which not only lightened the labors of the harvest but brought to the farmer the advantages of the industrial revolution enabling rural America to produce the food for America's growing cities. "Few things could have benefited the young republic as much," Professor Fishwick wrote, for it "touched one of mankind's basic needs—food." Cyrus McCormick's invention and his persistence in getting it manufactured and into the hands of the farmer, "made it possible to feed the multitudes. He gave his nation a hunger-insurance policy." All that seems remote if not absurd today in these days of punishing surpluses. Actually, however, farm policy discussion reaches back to abundance and scarcity. We have better tools or equipment today for abundance than ever before. We still find it necessary in many areas to defer to nature's favor. But scarcity then was a very important factor, and scarcity again can become a matter of concern. West of the Missouri as late as the early fifties the question was one of food.

Speaking in Lincoln recently to a small group gathered around the luncheon table, former Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan noted that "if by some miracle all of the food in the world at this present time could be divided evenly among all the peoples of the world there would be those who would go to bed hungry." The surpluses which disturb Secretary Benson so greatly under developing circumstances not yet foreseen could become a grateful heritage of this nation.

There has been much talk of the evil of abundance—to phrase it differently than it is now projected in terms of depressing surpluses. When it comes to agriculture and the production of food is it to be said that we have reached the point in this nation's history that there is a penalty to be imposed upon the hard work and the inventiveness of the American people? Is it the time for politicians to be talking of "crippling surpluses?" In a hungry world is all of this criticism of mountains of grain, depressing the rural areas, forcing farmers from their fields, in order? Or because the very abundance of American agriculture is this abundance a source of strength and not of weakness? There would not be a debate were America's farms producing too little. On the contrary, there would be real cause for worry. Perhaps instead of so much thought of surpluses we should be thankful that we continue to produce so abundantly and that which we produce—food—is basic of life itself.

Thus far it has been the American story that even a small surplus has been ruinous to the farmer. Somewhere in between there ought to be a compromise. When it comes to the small or to the family-sized farm this matter of curbing and limiting its production is at least worth a second thought.

Drawbacks

Science has announced perfection of an atomic clock so accurate that it will not vary more than five seconds in 300 years. Just what we have been looking for. But there are two small disadvantages. The lowest priced model, without a fancy case, will sell at $50 thousand and the most compact model is about the size of a filing cabinet.

Lt. Turner decided the next dog would be not only a watch dog but also a hunting dog. Plato was picked out as the largest of the litter. The playful companion, the Turners believe, was worth waiting for.

On Reclamation

Washington, D.C.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I was deeply interested in your editorial, "Of Men And Things," relating your position on irrigation and reclamation, and the need therefore in Nebraska. I heartily agree with you on this basic principle.

I must, however, disagree with this statement in that editorial:

"Since the Eisenhower Administration came into power, the friends of reclamation in this region to the West of the Missouri have recognized that fewer new projects have been undertaken. There has been very little money set aside by the Eisenhower Budget Bureau to initiate new reclamation developments."

As you know, I have been a member of the House Interior and Insular Affairs committee for 14 years. This committee, of course, has jurisdiction over irrigation and reclamation matters, so I have followed, very closely, the progress that has been made in this field.

The Budget Bureau, in 1946, when Mr. Truman was in the White House, initiated a "no new reclamation starts" policy. This position was reaffirmed each year thereafter during Truman's administration.

The Democratic eighty-first Congress wrote into the 1951 Appropriation Act the authority to cut back specific appropriations for reclamation projects, and Truman subsequently issued a "no new starts" order which was in effect when the Eisenhower Administration came into office.

During these years a few projects were authorized by the Congress but without Budget Bureau approval; and the reclamation appropriations were almost solely for those projects in the Central Valley, the Columbia Basin and the Missouri Basin authorized prior to the mid 1940s.

The Eisenhower Budget Bureau, on the other hand, has recently approved some 40 irrigation, reclamation, flood control and power projects, costing in the neighborhood of $1.6 billion.

Since the planning and development authority of the Bureau of Reclamation had been seriously curtailed for many years under previous policy, relatively few new starts ($56 million) got under way during the 83rd Congress. In the past two years, however, the Budget Bureau has approved, and Congress has authorized these notable projects:

- 1—Upper Colorado—Providing irrigation water for 133,000 new acres, supplemental water for 234,000 acres, and 5.5 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually. The cost $766 million.
- 2—Trinity River, California—Cost $225 million. Provides an additional 1.19 million acre-feet of water for Central Valley, California, and over 1 billion kw-h of electricity annually.
- 3—Washoe Project, Nevada—cost $43.5 million. Provides water for 5,000 new acres, supplemental water for 45,000 acres, and 96 million kw-h electricity annually.
- 4—Washita Project, Oklahoma—cost $40.6 million. Provides 400,000 acre-feet storage for irrigation, municipal and industrial water, and flood control.
- 5—Farwell Project, Nebraska—cost $30.5 million. Provides water for 52,500 new acres.
- 6—Ventura Project, California—cost $27.7 million. Provides water for 20,200 new acres.
- 7—Ainsworth Project, Nebraska—cost $26 million. Provides water for 34,000 new acres.
- 8—Crooked River Project, Oregon—cost $6.6 million. Provides water for 20,000 new acres, adds 51,000 acre-feet for supplemental irrigation.
- 9—Little Wood River Project, Idaho—cost $1.9 million. Provides supplemental water for 9,550 acres.
- 10—Wapantia Project, Oregon — cost $500,000. Provides supplemental water for 2,100 acres.

These projects were Budget-approved. Administration-supported and Congress-enacted. In addition, the President, the Budget Bureau, and the Department of the Interior, requested $5.5 million to start construction of the Fort Randall-Grand Island 230-KV transmission line which, as you know, was opposed and killed by the chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

The Administration likewise requested the $156 million Frye-Pan-Arkansas Project in Colorado, but the House leadership did not permit this legislation to come to the floor.

Two other landmark pieces of legislation were recently adopted, with Eisenhower Budget Bureau approval, namely the Small Projects Act, and the Irrigation Distributions System Act.

These are P. L. 934, and P. L. 520, respectively. To reclamationists these acts are important victories, since legislation of this type had been introduced in many Congresses prior to its adoption.

Again, let me say, you and I have a common ground in our deep belief in developing the natural resources of our country through irrigation and reclamation. We can also disagree, honestly and sincerely, in our political thinking, without losing any of this friendly spirit.

But I do hope that we will not let partisanship enter into our appraisal of the position and the accomplishments and the victories that have been won for our common cause.

In reviewing the record of concrete actions, as well as pronouncements, it is obvious that the Eisenhower administration has put new life and vigor into the reclamation program, helping to rescue it from the stalemate and degeneration that existed for several years prior to 1953.

We must continue to tell the reclamation story so future generations will have an improved food supply, security and opportunity.

'Around The Corner'

Lincoln, Neb.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: The farmers, after four years of Republicans in office, are still being told their prosperity is "just around the corner." They are also told a good rain would solve their troubles. The flexible price support system has meant lower prices for what he has to sell and higher prices for what he has to buy. Lack of rain is not what caused the farmers to market their livestock at a loss last fall. Unless a better solution to their problems is found a big percent of the farmers will go broke as they did during the Hoover administration.

Ton-Mile Tax Sure Of Spot On Ballot

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A Nebraska vote on the ton-mile tax proposal was certain Monday as Lancaster District Judge Harry Spencer threw a temporary injunction action out of court. The injunction action, aimed at keeping the ton-mile proposal off the Nov. 6 ballot, had been brought by George A. Spidel of Lincoln, president of the Nebraska Producers and Consumers Committee, a group spearheading opposition to the tax.

Judge Spencer's ruling sustained objections made by the Committee For Better Roads Through Fair Taxation, which sponsored the initiative petition drive to bring the tax proposal to a vote. A hearing on the temporary injunction matter had been set for Tuesday, but Judge Spencer's ruling Monday canceled out the scheduled hearing. Judge Spencer, who had heard oral arguments on the objections Saturday, ruled that:

1. Secretary of State Frank Marshall had found petitions valid with 38,000 signatures from 70 counties.
2. The burden to prove the petitions were insufficient was on Spidel, who would have to disqualify signatures in at least 33 counties.
3. There was insufficient time, as agreed by the parties, to prove falsification by Oct. 17, the deadline day for certifying the issue on the general election ballot.
4. When petitions on their face appear legally sufficient, no injunction can be issued until they are proven otherwise.

Judge Spencer said the "political rights of the citizens... cannot be invaded by courts unless the right to do so is clearly apparent."

Spidel's petition had charged scheming and deception in preparation and circulation of the petitions to put the issue to a vote.

In Proclamation
The ton-mile tax initiative petition was included Monday in a formal proclamation by Gov. Victor Anderson calling for the general election to be held Nov. 6 in Nebraska.

The proclamation, called for by the Constitution, also names the offices to be voted on and includes five proposals amending the Constitution.

All-Male Jury Selected For Murder Trial

PENDER, Neb. (U)—An all-male jury was selected Monday to hear the second degree murder trial of Pierre Morgan, who is charged in the fatal shooting of William Bradford of near Winnebago.

The case is the first of four murder trials scheduled for the fall term of District Court here.

The jury was selected by mid-afternoon Monday and attorneys then began presentation of their opening arguments. Robert G. Fuhrman is county attorney. Morgan was charged with second degree murder after a dispute resulted in Bradford's death Dec. 22, 1955.

PLANS SET FOR 10-DAY ITALIAN WHEAT TOUR

Final plans were announced Monday for the 10-day tour of Nebraska wheat production and marketing facilities by an Italian wheat export team.

Members of the Italian team, seven key people in the Italian government, and the milling and macaroni industries dealing with the importation of wheat into Italy, will be in Nebraska for ten days from Oct. 14-24, Carson Smith, chairman of the Nebraska Wheat Commission, said.

The group will tour the entire state, and be in Lincoln four days. From Lincoln the team will leave to view wheat and grain facilities in Kansas and Oklahoma.

Expenses for bringing the Italian group to the United States will be paid from funds made possible by a joint contract between the Nebraska Wheat Commission and the Foreign Agricultural Service.

Co-Operation Stressed
During the group's tour of Nebraska, Smith said, they will be shown how Nebraska wheat is produced and stored on the farm and later moved to country elevators and terminal elevators, eventually reaching mills and bakeries where it is processed into food. Special emphasis will be placed on the efforts put forth by farmers to produce high quality hard red winter wheat and to show how elevators and mills have co-operated to maintain a standard of quality so that Nebraska wheat could command a premium price in the grain market, he said.

While in the state, the Italian team will visit the Grain Exchange in Omaha; flour mills in Lincoln, Omaha and Grand Island; a bakery in Hastings, the North Platte Agricultural Experiment Station; four farms; two country elevators, and a terminal elevator.

On Oct. 18 the delegation will attend the 14th annual Nebraska Wheat Show at Alliance. The visit will wind up with a two day visit at the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture.

WheatCommission Seeks Further Uses Of Wheat

A strong program for further development and utilization of wheat during the coming year is the expressed goal of the Nebraska Wheat Commission.

The Commission announced this goal at a meeting which marked the re-election of Carson Smith of Ogallala as chairman.

The Commission said it wanted continued research in the industrial use of agricultural products and planned to advertise the superior quality of Nebraska wheat in milling and baking trade journals.

The Commission agreed to work closely with the Italian export team which will visit Nebraska Oct. 14-24. The Italian wheat buying team will be headed by Italy's High Commissioner on Foods Leslie F. Sheffield.

Lloyd Welch of Hubbell was re-elected vice chairman of the Commission, while Telford Ewing of Gering was named secretary.

Both Sides Power Picture Slated For Study At Meet

HOLDREGE, Neb. (AP) — The joint convention of the Nebraska State Irrigation Assn. and Nebraska Reclamation Assn. will take a look at the industrial and power sides of the water picture.

Speakers at the Oct. 25-26 convention include C. V. Price, Lincoln, chief of the Division of Nebraska Resources, and Deway J. DeBoer, Columbus, executive director of the Nebraska Public Power System.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, Minden, will address the final luncheon session of the convention.

Also on the tentative program are R. J. Walter Jr., Denver, Bureau of Reclamation Region 7 director; Maj. Gen. G. E. Galloway, Omaha, U.S. Corps of Engineers Missouri River division engineer, and E. C. Reed, Lincoln, director of the conservation and survey division at the University of Nebraska.

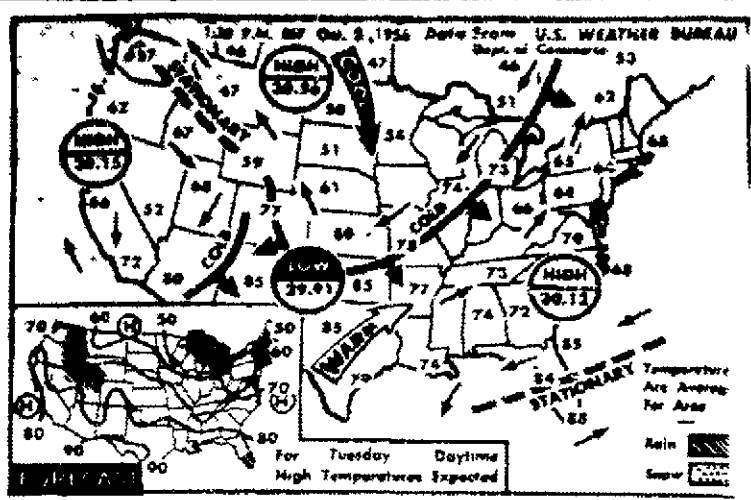

The convention will hear a panel discussion of water laws by three attorneys and an engineer. The attorneys are Bert L. Overcash, Lincoln, C. L. Baskins, North Platte, and L. A. Danielson, Scottsbluff, George E. Johnson, Hastings, the fourth panelist, is chief engineer of the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation District.

The Resolutions Committee will hold its meetings Wednesday evening, Oct. 24.

No Nagging Backache Means a Good Night's Sleep

Nagging backache, headache, or muscular aches and pains may come on with over-exertion, emotional upset or day to day stress and strain. And folks who eat and drink unwisely sometimes suffer mild bladder irritation — with that restless, uncomfortable feeling. If you are miserable and worn out because of these discomforts, Doan's Pills often help by their gentle, soothing action, and by their mild diuretic action through the kidneys — leading to increase the output of the 15 million of kidney tubes.

So if nagging backache makes you feel dragged-out, miserable, with restless, sleepless nights, don't wait, try Doan's Pills. You'll soon have happy relief millions have enjoyed for over 60 years. Ask for new, large, economy size and save money. Get Doan's Pills today!

Sunny Skies Expected Here

There will be scattered showers and thundershowers over the Lakes region, northern New England, and the northern Rockies Tuesday afternoon. It will be cold or cooler in the Lakes region, the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi Valleys and northern New England, warmer in Louisiana, Arizona and the northern plains. Clear and sunny skies will prevail elsewhere. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

... Traditional GOP Caravan Gets Under Way

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — A luncheon session at Fremont followed street meetings at Ashland and Wahoo Monday as the traditional election-year Republican campaign caravan got rolling.

More than 100 were on hand for the luncheon at the Fremont golf club. Candidates for state and national offices were with the group meeting the voters in advance of the Nov. 6 general election.

The caravan visited West Point, Oakland, Tekamah, Walthill and South Sioux City later in the day.

"The main issue of the campaign is whether I have served the people of Nebraska well," Gov. Victor Anderson, bidding for a second term, told audiences at the first two stops. "If so, I should be re-elected," he added.

Trading Post Is Dedicated By Historians

Lincoln Star Special

CHADRON, Neb. — Another commemoration of Nebraska's history was held with the dedication of the James Bordeaux Trading Post here.

The dedication of the post was observed along with the post's 110th anniversary and its restoration as a Nebraska historical marker.

Dan Potts, historian of the Scottsbluff National Monument, and Roger T. Grange Jr., curator of Fort Robinson Museum, spoke on the various historical sites in Nebraska and surrounding areas. Charles Hanson, director of the Museum of the Fur Trade which is located adjacent to the trading post, told about Bordeaux, who came from France and established the post in 1846.

A full-size Indian teepee, a squaw garden and a robe press were on display at the post during the dedication.

Walter Cozad, 79, Retired Telephone Executive, Dies

PORTLAND, Ore. — Funeral services for Walter F. Cozad, 79, former official of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company and Omaha civic leader, will be held Tuesday in Portland. He had resided in Portland for the past 10 years.

A native of Seward County, Nebraska, he went to Omaha in 1920 as general superintendent of traffic for Northwestern Bell. He was appointed general manager for the Nebraska-South Dakota area of the company in 1928 and retired in 1933.

Mr. Cozad was a member of the national board of the Camp Fire Girls at the time of his death.

Surviving are his wife, Mabel; a son, Richard J., and a daughter, Mrs. Helen C. Clancy, all of Portland.

CULVER, Ind. (AP) — Eugene C. Eppley of Omaha, former chain hotel operator, has contributed $1,400,000 to Culver Military Academy to build a 1,500-seat auditorium-theatre near the north shore of Lake Maxinkuckee.

The contribution raises to $2,600,000 Eppley has donated to Culver. He is a 1901 Culver honor graduate.

Stanley Long Rites Tuesday; Lieutenant Governor Candidate

... Served On NU Board Of Regents 24 Years

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. — Funeral services for Stanley D. Long, 69, retired druggist who was the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church at Grand Island. He died Saturday night in an Omaha hospital.

His death was attributed to chronic hepatitis. He had been hospitalized since Sept. 28 and had been ill with the liver ailment more than a year.

Prominent in Democratic circles, he had unsuccessfully opposed Rep. A. L. Miller for Congress from the Fourth District and had run against the late Hugh Butler for a U.S. Senate seat in 1932.

He had served on the University of Nebraska Board of Regents for 24 years, 1927 to 1951. Four times president of the board, he was named vice president in 1933 of the Association of Governing Boards of American Land Grant Colleges.

Born in Holdreth, Neb., he attended Wilcox High School, Holdrege Business College and the Fremont College of Pharmacy.

Ex-Cowles Mayor

Before coming to Grand Island in 1931, he was in the pharmacy business at Cowles, Neb., for 20 years. He served as mayor of Cowles for 10 years. Prior to going to Cowles, he was a pharmacist at Bloomington for two years.

At one time Mr. Long headed an insurance company in Grand Island. He retired from the drug business in 1933.

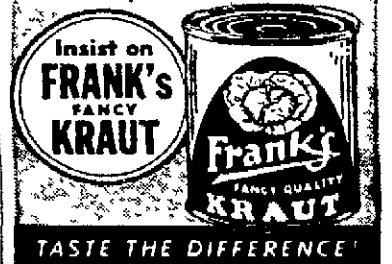

His affiliations included the Presbyterian Church, Masonic Lodge, Scottish Rite, Royal Arch Masons, Knights Templar, Tehama Shrine and Sons of the American Revolution. He was also an honorary

Pale Hodge Tells Of Thefts

CHICAGO — A glum and pale Orville E. Hodge Monday told about the involved deals that ended in his trip to prison for stealing 1½ million dollars in public funds.

Hodge, who was ousted as state auditor in the Republican administration of Illinois, gave his account of big money transactions before the Democratic controlled Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Most of the opening session was carried in the Chicago area by live telecast. But Hodge objected to appearing on TV and the committee chairman, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), ordered the camera to steer clear of the imprisoned politician while he was being questioned.

The camera was trained on the Senate staff while Hodge was in the witness chair.

Audience

Interest was heightened by the fact that Hodge was talking at length before an audience for the first time since his troubles began to pile up last summer. In his brief innings in state and federal courts he pleaded guilty.

A capacity crowd in a courtroom in the U. S. Court House heard Hodge tell how he closed one bank and opened another in its stead. Hodge bought stock in the new bank, and made trips to Washington to keep the capitalization below the figure federal officials favored.

But, he said, he didn't seek any help from the White House or congressmen.

An earlier witness testified that Hodge had funneled phony state checks through a Chicago bank, the Southmoor Bank & Trust Co. Hodge was trapped and sentenced to 12 to 15 years in prison for embezzlement.

Hodge, flanked by three guards, appeared pale and wan when he entered the hearing room.

He testified about how he closed the First State Bank of Elmwood Park, on Chicago's northwest fringe, April 11, 1953, on grounds that it held too many small loan notes.

And he told how its successor, the Bank of Elmwood Park, which he purchased stock, was opened less than seven weeks later.

Sen. Fulbright brought out that Hodge wanted the new bank to open with capital of $600,000 against the one million capitalization asked by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Hodge told the committee he went to Washington three or four times to get the bank opened on his terms.

Earl Cook

Asked whom he saw, Hodge said he talked with staff members of the FDIC. He mentioned only one name, Earl Cook.

In response to questions, he said he had not discussed the matter with the White House, Leonard Hall, chairman of the Republican National Committee, or members of Congress.

The committee, among other things, is trying to determine the role of federally insured banks and federal agencies in the Hodge case.

Sen. Fulbright commented that he is trying to ascertain "whether a state official can impose his will on the FDIC and cause it to insure a bank with inadequate capital."

State Labor Groups Vote To Merge

... Preble President

HASTINGS, Neb. — Nebraska AFL and CIO state organizations Monday voted to merge.

A combined meeting was scheduled Tuesday to consider the merger resolution, proposed constitution and by-laws.

The new organization will be the Nebraska State AFL-CIO.

The Nebraska Federation of Labor and the Nebraska Industrial Union Council held separate conventions Monday. It was at these sessions that the merger votes were taken.

Officers Named

Gordon Preble, NFL head, was named to be president of the combined group and another AFL man, E. F. Noble, Grand Island, was picked as secretary-treasurer.

They will be ex-officio members of an executive board made up of Jack Renault, Scottsbluff; Kenneth P. Lewis, Lincoln; Paul Shaffer, Omaha; Joe Silhasek, Omaha; Conrad Kreiger, Grand Island; and Guy Byers, Omaha, all AFL; and Nels Peterson, Omaha; Rudy Chlebod, Omaha; Victor Meyers, Omaha; and Ronald Smith, Lincoln, CIO.

The proportion of representation was determined by the proposed merger agreement.

The Nebraska groups were required to adopt a merger plan within two years after merger of their national parent bodies, or to accept a constitution drafted by the combined national groups.

There was still about a year left under this deadline and while there was little opposition at Monday's sessions, there was some pressure to postpone the action for a year.

Oil Suit Settled Out Of Court

A U.S. District Court controversy between the Rogers Oil Company and its former president, Wilbur F. Rogers of Scottsbluff, has been settled out of court.

The company, engaged in oil exploration and development, had asked for an accounting and judgment in connection with alleged violations of a contract by Rogers. The suit was filed last January.

Rogers, the company had contended, engaged in oil drilling in competition with the company, which he headed from March, 1952, to November, 1953, and used company equipment and personnel for his own operations.

Judge John W. Delehant dismissed the company's complaint and Rogers' counter-claim with prejudice upon a joint stipulation by the parties.

More Than One 'Hot Spot' In Africa, Says Lincolnite

After 19 months in the Gold Coast, British West Africa, a former Lincolnite, Mrs. John Small, is willing to testify that there is more than one "hot spot" on the dark continent.

Mrs. Small, the former Ruth Virginia Jewett, and her husband, arrived in Lincoln Monday for a month-long visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grey Jewett of 6119 Everett. Small is employed by the Texas Petroleum Company, and has been working in the sales division in the coastal colony.

The Gold Coast colony is not a hot spot for reasons of political unrest which have put the Suez Canal area in the headlines, the Smalls hastened to explain. The political turmoil of North Africa has had little effect upon the small British area which is scheduled to become a commonwealth next year.

Although the country is "delightful for three months of the year, just like the climate of southern California," Mrs. Small explained, the other nine months are hot and humid and temperatures reach as high as 127 degrees at mid-day.

Soon after her marriage in 1954, the University of Nebraska graduate was on her way to Africa to set up housekeeping five degrees from the Equator.

Mr. Small, a graduate of Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., where he studied international relations and foreign trade, contracted the "model political situation" of the small countries and the political unrest in Egypt. He admitted that the Canal Zone crisis would have a profound effect upon world trade and upon the oil companies with large holdings in the area, but pointed out that the situation seemed to have little effect in the Gold Coast.

Although the country "is suffering from a few growing pains in assuming its independence, its troubles are relatively minor," they said.

The Smalls have lived in the European sections of Accra, the capital, and the seacoast town of Takoradi. Future plans for the couple are vague, and the next assignment may be in the United States or in Nigeria.

The possibility of returning to Africa brought the comment of "c'est la vie" from Mrs. Small, "but if we go back," she said firmly, "I am going to have an air conditioner."

Oil Suit Settled Out Of Court

A U.S. District Court controversy between the Rogers Oil Company and its former president, Wilbur F. Rogers of Scottsbluff, has been settled out of court.

The company, engaged in oil exploration and development, had asked for an accounting and judgment in connection with alleged violations of a contract by Rogers. The suit was filed last January.

Rogers, the company had contended, engaged in oil drilling in competition with the company, which he headed from March, 1952, to November, 1953, and used company equipment and personnel for his own operations.

Judge John W. Delehant dismissed the company's complaint and Rogers' counter-claim with prejudice upon a joint stipulation by the parties.

Pale Hodge Tells Of Thefts

CHICAGO — A glum and pale Orville E. Hodge Monday told about the involved deals that ended in his trip to prison for stealing 1½ million dollars in public funds.

Hodge, who was ousted as state auditor in the Republican administration of Illinois, gave his account of big money transactions before the Democratic controlled Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Most of the opening session was carried in the Chicago area by live telecast. But Hodge objected to appearing on TV and the committee chairman, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), ordered the camera to steer clear of the imprisoned politician while he was being questioned.

The camera was trained on the Senate staff while Hodge was in the witness chair.

Audience

Interest was heightened by the fact that Hodge was talking at length before an audience for the first time since his troubles began to pile up last summer. In his brief innings in state and federal courts he pleaded guilty.

A capacity crowd in a courtroom in the U. S. Court House heard Hodge tell how he closed one bank and opened another in its stead. Hodge bought stock in the new bank, and made trips to Washington to keep the capitalization below the figure federal officials favored.

But, he said, he didn't seek any help from the White House or congressmen.

An earlier witness testified that Hodge had funneled phony state checks through a Chicago bank, the Southmoor Bank & Trust Co. Hodge ultimately was trapped and sentenced to 12 to 15 years in prison for embezzlement.

Hodge, flanked by three guards, appeared pale and wan when he entered the hearing room.

He testified about how he closed the First State Bank of Elmwood Park, on Chicago's northwest fringe, April 11, 1953, on grounds that it held too many small loan notes.

And he told how its successor, the Bank of Elmwood Park in which he purchased stock, was opened less than seven weeks later.

Sen. Fulbright brought out that Hodge wanted the new bank to open with capital of $600,000 against the one million capitalization asked by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Hodge told the committee he went to Washington three or four times to get the bank opened on his terms.

Earl Cook

Asked whom he saw, Hodge said he talked with staff members of the FDIC. He mentioned only one name, Earl Cook.

In response to questions, he said he had not discussed the matter with the White House, Leonard Hall, chairman of the Republican National Committee, or members of Congress.

The committee, among other things, is trying to determine the role of federally insured banks and federal agencies in the Hodge case.

Sen. Fulbright commented that he is trying to ascertain "whether a state official can impose his will on the FDIC and cause it to insure a bank with inadequate capital."

State Labor Groups Vote To Merge

... Preble President

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska AFL and CIO state organizations Monday voted to merge.

A combined meeting was scheduled Tuesday to consider the merger resolution, proposed constitution and by-laws.

The new organization will be the Nebraska State AFL-CIO.

The Nebraska Federation of Labor and the Nebraska Industrial Union Council held separate conventions Monday. It was at these sessions that the merger votes were taken.

Officers Named

Gordon Preble, NFL head, was named to be president of the combined group and another AFL man, E. F. Noble, Grand Island, was picked as secretary-treasurer.

They will be ex-officio members of an executive board made up of Jack Renault, Scottsbluff; Kenneth P. Lewis, Lincoln; Paul Shaffer, Omaha; Joe Silhasek, Omaha; Conrad Kreiger, Grand Island; and Guy Byers, Omaha, all AFL; and Nels Peterson, Omaha; Rudy Chleborad, Omaha; Victor Meyers, Omaha, and Ronald Smith, Lincoln, CIO.

The proportion of representation was determined by the proposed merger agreement.

The Nebraska groups were required to adopt a merger plan within two years after merger of their national parent bodies, or to accept a constitution drafted by the combined national groups.

There was still about a year left under this deadline and while there was little opposition at Monday's sessions, there was some pressure to postpone the action for a year.

Lobbying Probers Turn Up Another Case Of 'Phony' Wires

WASHINGTON (AP)—The special Senate investigating lobbying Monday turned up another case of "phony" telegrams going to senators about to vote on a major bill.

Albert H. Stoddard, 40, sales manager for the Jack O'Connor insurance agency, Boston, said he initiated and took "full responsibility" for the sending of 80 wires apiece to Massachusetts (Sens. Kennedy (D) and Saltonstall (R)) last July. And he said he knew some of the telegrams' purported signers had not authorized use of their names.

He acknowledged he shouldn't have done this.

Three of those whose names were used, all agents for the Boston firm, took the stand and told of their "amazement" at discovering their names on the telegrams. Two of the three said they were opposed to the views expressed in the wires.

The telegrams opposed an amendment by Sen. George (D-Ga) to allow Social Security benefits to go to permanently and totally disabled workers at age 50 instead of requiring them to wait until the retirement age of 65.

The Senate adopted George's proposal July 17 by a 47-45 vote which generally followed party lines. Kennedy voted for it, Saltonstall against. The bill later became law.

In an earlier round of hearings last month the committee, headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), developed that telegrams with unauthorized signatures had been sent to Sen. Thye (R-Minn) seeking passage of the natural gas bill.

President Eisenhower vetoed that measure because of the reported unusual activity surrounding its passage, and the eight-man committee was set up to look into lobbying. This phase of its hearings is expected to last three days.

'Pattern'

McClellan said Stoddard's disclosures are "a part of the pattern of practices that have developed in this area" of lobbying.

When McClellan asked Stoddard whether he thought his actions were proper, the witness replied "We shouldn't have used names for which we lacked authorization."

Questioned under oath, Stoddard said O'Connor was in Europe at the time Stoddard decided to send the telegrams so he took the action on his own responsibility.

Stoddard said he decided that the George proposal would be harmful to the agency from a business standpoint. He said he directed some of his company officials to get permission from company agents throughout the states to sign their names to the protesting telegrams.

But the testimony showed that not all of the 80 were contacted and some didn't think the George amendment was such a bad thing.

Dog Gets Medal For Saving Boy

NEW FIELD IS SUGGESTED FOR EX-STUDENT

A former University of Nebraska criminology student, who was sentenced on a burglary charge, was told by the judge: "You should have taken business administration."

Marion E. Slifer, 28, was sentenced to 18 months in the State Reformatory by Lancaster District Judge John Polk, who noted Slifer had studied criminology at the University.

Slifer, who resided at 120 N. 12th, had pleaded guilty to breaking and entering John Maher's Tavern at 133 N. 12th on Sept. 23 with intent to steal.

He previously was sentenced August, 1954, to a four-year Reformatory term from Alliance on a mayhem charge.

Rural Reorganization Ideas Given In Panel Discussion

... DON'T WANT TO BE PUSHED

By HARRIET ASHLEY
Star Staff Writer

"While I am definitely in favor of reorganization of rural schools, rural areas don't want to be forced into reorganization," Gordon Neuernberger, Wayne County School Board representative, said.

Neuernberger spoke on a panel on "The Rural Viewpoint Re: Improved Education for Nebraska" Monday at a meeting of the Nebraska Council for Better Education.

He said that some rural areas are trying to reorganize too fast. He said that reorganization should be broken down into steps and proceed gradually.

Charles Marshall, president of the Farm Bureau Federation, asserted his organization is "in favor of school reorganization as long as the decision is made locally."

Not Sought

When asked why farmers are opposed to Federal aid to education when the farmer accepts subsidies himself, Marshall said that many farmers have not sought government aid.

In 1954, Marshall said, 42 per cent of the farmers nationally sought government aid. He also said that less than 24 per cent of the total income of the Nebraska farmer comes from the government.

Marshall said the Farm Bureau Federation has always opposed social security for farmers and that politicians pushed it, not the farmers.

A representative of Otoe County said the problem of reorganization there would bring about an unfair mill levy distribution. He said that in the Nebraska City area the rural taxpayers would have to pay 65 per cent of the school levy, but that only 20 per cent of the children were from rural homes.

1,600-MILE TRIP HERE MISTAKE; FUNERAL HELD IN CALIFORNIA

Mrs. F. M. Turner traveled over 1,600 miles from her home in Leaburg, Ore., to Lincoln, where she expected to attend the funeral of her sister, Celia Kline.

When she arrived, however, she learned that her sister was living; and, instead, it was her brother-in-law, Cyril Wunderlich of North Hollywood, Calif., who had died.

Mrs. Turner was not at her home when the death telegram was sent. A relative took the message by telephone. He had never heard of the brother-in-law, but he knew Celia Kline and knew that she had been ill.

Misinterpreting the message, he told Mrs. Turner that Celia, who lives with another sister, Mrs. Lena

District Court Jury Called For 2-Week Session

A Lancaster District Court jury has been called for a two-week session beginning Monday, Oct. 22.

Presiding Judge John Polk said 120 prospective jurors were being summoned for three panels.

A docket call of civil cases ready for trial will be heard this Saturday. Fifty-seven cases are presently on the court docket.

District Judge Lyle Jackson of Neligh will serve as the third judge during the jury session with Judges Polk and Paul White.

Herbert H. Smith, Former Orchestra Leader, 79, Dies

Herbert H. Smith, 79, of Omaha, died there Monday.

Funeral services will be 2 p.m. Wednesday at Roberts, with the Rev. Thomas C. Dick Jr. officiating. Burial will be in Wyuka.

A longtime Lincoln resident, Mr. Smith moved to Omaha about a year ago. He was a retired musician, having led his own orchestra—"The Herb Smith Orchestra"—for some time. He was born at Aurora, Neb.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Marjorie L. Dailey of Omaha; brother, Phillip P. Smith of St. Paul, Minn.; and an aunt, Mrs. William H. Ferguson of Lincoln.

POSTCARD

I don't suppose I have thought of a horse in years. But I see we are in the midst of "Save the Horse Week." A noble thought and worth thinking nobly about.

I might say that with one boxer dog, a Siamese cat and three kittens, my household is mightily indebted to the horse. If they are saving horses, my thought is please save one for me. The price I pay for housework is close approaching the nudge on file inignon.

Horses are likewise the backbone of the TV industry. Cowboys use horses to chase each other. Like-wise to kiss. Cowboys never kiss girls. They kiss horses. I think TV cowboys certainly earn their money.

Well, all this reminds me of Mr. Harry Gross who used to heel-and-toe it on Broadway and deal in horses.

Mr. Gross had many popular establishments in New York. So popular in fact that they outnumbered Schrafft's candy stores. People would enter these parlors which were usually in the back of a cigar store and utter the magic code "A deuce on Escalator in the front!"

Mr. Gross would then chalk down that the customer wished to wager on a cavalry maneuver. Placing his faith that a bangtail named Escalator would run faster than any other horse in the sport of kings.

Since many horses are slower than other horses, and many people are wrong, Mr. Gross accepted the joustings. According to the police, Mr. Gross had a gross of $20,000,000 a year.

Now this was before Mr. Ke-fauver wished to be Veep and was running a committee to end sin. Mr. Gross caused more talk about horses than had been heard since Gen. Jeb Stuart rode up to Pennsylvania.

When the police informed Mr. Gross he was busting the book-making laws, Mr. Gross did some talking too.

Mr. Gross was looking at the wrong end of a barred apartment. And he felt it was unfair all around unless some of his pals came and stayed a similar length of time. After all, you cannot play canasta alone.

Anyway, the upshot was Judge Sam Leibowitz gave Mr. Gross 12 years free rent. And so far as I know, he is still doing his bit in the moan-and-wail.

This is what comes of saving horses.

If we are to save the horse this week, it would seem like a good idea to know just what we are saving him for. A sentimental gesture like this is worthless without some solid thinking.

It seems to me it is up to the horses to save themselves.

A horse cannot sit around pointing up the qualities I have mentioned.

He cannot say: "Without me you could not send bookies to jail."

Or, "What would the boxer dog and all those kittens do without me?" This would be silly because the dog and kittens are not trying to save horses. They are not even trying to save me money.

Top Steer Calf Shown By Feeder From Springview

BASSETT, Neb. (AP) — Glen Forgey of Springview sold the Sand-hill's Cattle Assn.'s show's top steer calf for $30 a hundredweight.

Rink Farm of Sun Prairie, Wis., bought the animal.

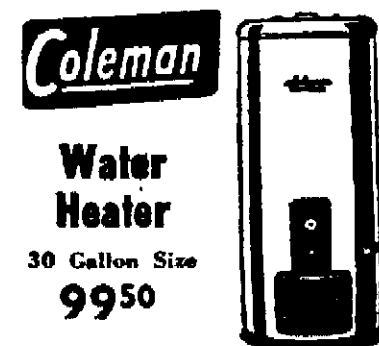

H. L. Buell and Sons Ranch of Rose, Neb., showed the top load of fall steer calves, which sold at $25.80. He also had the top loads of fall heifer calves and yearling steers.

The top load of spring heifer calves, consigned by Lloyd Cole of Bassett, brought $21.00. About 1,000 cattle feeders from a seven-state area attended.

We've unwrapped the 1957 Fords!

These are the best Fords of our lives.

The whole package is new.

It's the prestige car in its field.

The power is new—with Silver Anniversary V-8's to fit every horsepower need.

The style is new—a revolutionary, sharp, brilliant, clear-cut design that will stand out in traffic.

The comfort is new—a rock-solid velvet-road ride.

The braking is positive—silky smooth when your toe says "whoa." The bodies are braced and beefed as never before. The steering is light and firm but with no sloppiness, no sluggish response.

This is a great automobile, from the large honest dial faces on the instrument panel to the effortless loading way it cruises. At high speeds this new Ford has none of the struggling, humping, stretch-out feeling you sometimes get in some other cars.

The new Ford begins with the "Inner Ford." Its new elegance comes from within, from the way its automotive muscles are put together. There are a thousand-and-one automotive lessons built into this New Kind of Ford. All of the changes are toward more rugged endurance, toward increased power, toward smoother operation. These are the bases for its "Mark of Tomorrow" elegance. This is the one fine car in the low-price field.

There are actually 19 different new kinds of Ford—the new Custom 300 and Custom Series on a 116-inch wheelbase, the new Fairlane 500 and Fairlane Series on a 118-inch wheelbase, and the famous five Ford Station Wagons, the champions of glamour cruisers. And no matter which new kind of Ford you choose, it's yours at low Ford prices!

How does it look? It's only fourteen hands high—as tall as a child's pony. The new Fairlane height of 56 inches means you can stand beside it and lean your elbows on its roof.

And it's over seventeen feet long... 21 inches wider than it is high! These are only numbers—they won't really mean anything to you until you see the big new kind of Ford.

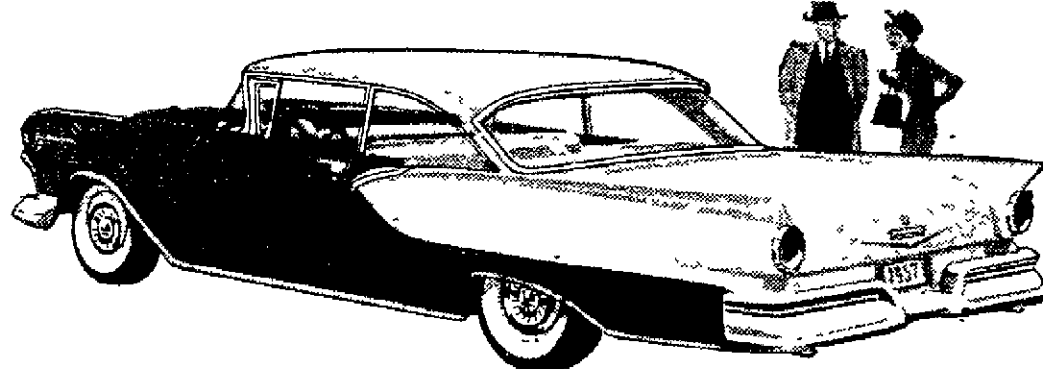

It looks like the fun on a travel poster. It's the kind of car that looks sunshiny in the rain.

It looks as fresh as morning.

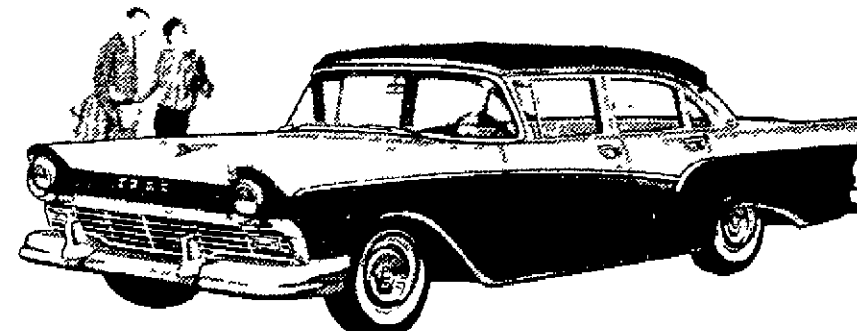

It looks like tomorrow—like the first thing out of Detroit that symbolizes the new Age of Movement.

THE EXCITING NEWS MUST WAIT

WE PROMISED to tell you some exciting news this morning—but we regret to say there has been a slight change of plans in the announcement date. So—we have no choice but to wait—and as soon as we know—you'll know—

But announcement or no announcement, we still have news of the town that will be of interest—Some of it involves homecomers—some of it has to do with guests, and in addition we have news of party committees and such and things.

Phi Mu Mothers Club To Meet

The Mothers Club of Phi Mu sorority will hold its first fall meeting Friday afternoon at the chapter house, 5219 Huntington. The club officers will serve as hostesses for the 1:30 o'clock meeting.

HEAR that Wednesday is homecoming day for Mrs. Willard M. Folsom and Mrs. Lester M. Buckley who have been spending the past several weeks touring Europe—Mrs. Folsom and Mrs. Buckley will plane in tomorrow afternoon.

AND while we are on the subject of travelers and Europe—we'll continue the topic with news of a foursome that has been spending many weeks traveling in Europe—The group includes Mrs. Ellery Davis, Mrs. Wayne Pringle, Mrs. Pauline Abbott and Mrs. William Heilig—who will be arriving home around Nov. 1.

THAT is the time, incidentally, that Mr. and Mrs. Frank Williams who, so we hear, have left Spain for Italy and more traveling on the Continent, will be returning home.

ALREADY back in town are the members of the Gruesome Foursome—and its auxiliary—As you doubtless know, since we have mentioned it in past seasons, the "Gruesome Foursome" is composed of Joyce Ayres, Wynan Kenagy, Sam Haupt and Ellery Hall Davis—and the auxiliary, of course, is composed of the foursome wives. Each golf game brings a contribution from the foursome, and every penny goes into a kitty that eventually, at the end of the golf season, takes the group to the Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, for something of a splurge.

Mr. and Mrs. Ayres, Mr. and Mrs. Kenagy, Mr. and Mrs. Haupt and Mr. and Mrs. Davis are just home from their fifth annual trek to the Broadmoor.

IF the "Get Out the Vote" party, planned for Saturday evening by the members of the Saturday Night Club, isn't a success, it won't be the fault of the committee who have been hard at work. Last Thursday evening the members of the committee met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Swenson, and Sunday afternoon they devoted their time to some clever decorations for the affair when they met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Q. Schimmel.

Monday Evening Bride

MRS DALE PAPKE

Giadoli in pastel shades, and tall, white candles burning in seven-branched candelabra, appointed the chancel of the Methodist Church at Cortland Monday evening, Oct. 8, for the wedding of Miss Phyllis Jean Moormeier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Moormeier, and Dale E. Papke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Papke, all of Cortland. The 7:30 ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Warren Baker, and Mrs. Alvin Vandergrind of Firth, pianist and sister of the bridegroom, played the wedding music and also accompanied Gorden Helberg of Blue Hill, the vocal soloist.

Mrs. William Bonner of Sterling, Colo., was her sister's matron of honor and appeared in a colonial gown of nylon sheer over taffeta in the wood violet shade. The shirred bodice of nylon was strapless and was completed by a shoulder stole of matching net, and the shirred motif was repeated in the design of the full skirt of nylon over taffeta. Costumed identically in the rose tone were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Norval Papke of Cortland, sister of the bride; Mrs. Leon Overbeck, Lincoln, sister of the bridegroom; and Mrs. Norton Kinghorn of Dorchester. The attendants wore headbands of frock-toned net and carried bouquets of pink carnations. Miss Cynthia Sue Papke attended her aunt as flower girl, and lighting the candles were Mrs. Clifford Moormeier and Mrs. Donald Moormeier.

Leon Overbeck of Lincoln served as best man, and seating the guests were Alvin Vandergrind, Adams; Clifford Moormeier of Princeton; and Donald Moormeier of Cortland, brother of the bride.

For her wedding, the bride selected a gown of Chantilly and tulle over satin. Lace formed the tiny mandarin collar of the sculptured bodice which was accented by a shoulder-wide yoke of illusion, appliqued with sequin-trimmed lace, and the sleeves were long and fitted. Below the narrow waist, the lace extended into a full hip-yoke over the tulle skirt, and her veil of illusion was held by a coronet of pearl and sequin-dotted lace. She carried a white Bible ornamented with a white orchid and covered with stephanotis.

A reception for 250 guests was held in the church parlors. Upon their return from a short wedding trip, for which the bride wore a suit of cocoa brown wool with beige accessories, Mr. and Mrs. Papke will make their home on a farm near Cortland. Mrs. Papke has been employed in Lincoln the last four years. The bridegroom is a former student of the University of Nebraska.

The committee is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Swenson, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. A. Q. Schimmel, Mr. and Mrs. C. Ned Cadwallader, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Seacrest and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Bruce.

BUT NEXT Friday evening the members of the Mr. and Mrs. Dancing Club, who will dine and dance in the Terrace Room at the Hotel Lincoln, will have a surprise—The theme of the affair is "Do It Yourself"—and the plans are mighty, mighty clever.

In charge of the party arrangements is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cather, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Robin Loerch, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. John Cox, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Gartner, and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bailey.

And the Mr. and Mrs. Club, by the way, have added another couple to its new membership list—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Arnold.

ON LINCOLN'S guest list are Mrs. Myron Garfinkle and her son, Jack, who arrived from Kansas City on Sunday to spend some time as the house guests of Mrs. Garfinkle's parents, Mr. and William C. Stam.

Toastmistress Club Program

Miss Julie Baluch presided as toastmistress at the regular dinner-meeting of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club, held at the Capital Hotel.

Topic mistress during the dinner was Mrs. Erna Wentz, and serving as general evaluator was Mrs. Angeline Camp.

Speakers for the evening's program were Mrs. Bertha Johnston, "Ship of Destiny"; Mrs. Chester Beckwith, "You Can Do It!"; and Mrs. Pat Butler, "Planning, Fanning, Canning and Scanning."

Eastridge PTA Has Meeting

The first regular meeting of the fall season of Eastridge PTA was held Monday evening at the school. Following a tour of the classrooms, Mrs. Douglas Brogden, president, conducted a short business meeting. Members of the faculty and room mothers were introduced.

Mrs. C. E. Gordon, chairman of the hostess committee, and members of her committee served refreshments at the close of the evening.

Officers Of Safari

The Safari Dancing Club, which opens its new season next Friday evening at Cotner Terrace, has as its official staff for 1936-37, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Minard, president, and Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Givens, secretary-treasurer. In the picture seated left to right, are Mrs. Minard, Mrs. Givens and Mr. Minard. Standing is Mr. Givens.

THE STAR IN SUBURBIA

Our social spotlight in Eastridge this morning revolves around the much awaited return of the 307th Bomb Wing, and the gala opening of the new Officers Club at the Air Force Base this Saturday evening. What better way to celebrate the many homecomings? Of course the other social events, such as bridge parties, coffees, visitors, showers and dinner parties are as ever, in much evidence among our Eastridge neighbors.

While the husbands of the 307th Bomb Wing were expected last week-end, we did hear of an unexpected arrival which made Mrs. Charles Englehart happy. Her husband, Col. Charles Englehart, flew in on Friday evening from Washington D.C. to spend the week-end. The Englehart had an impromptu dinner party on Saturday evening and included among their guests Col. and Mrs. Thomas Powell, Maj. Dominica O'Brien, and Capt. and Mrs. Gerald Anderson.

Entertaining at a small canape party before the opening of the Officers Club on Saturday evening will be Maj. and Mrs. George Briggs and Maj. and Mrs. Thomas Kahley.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Charles Vollmer will be entertaining eight friends for bridge and a dessert supper.

Capt. and Mrs. Richard Courtney entertained at dinner on Sunday evening when Capt. and Mrs. Eldon Mills were their guests.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Chester Mack of Omaha arrived in Eastridge to spend the day with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kruse.

Entertaining 13 neighborhood friends at a morning coffee last Thursday morning was Mrs. Allen Wilson.

Troop 125 of the Brownies held an investiture service yesterday afternoon for five young ladies at the home of their Troop leader, Mrs. William Smiley. The new members include Linda Morris, Cindy Lingenfelder, Ann Smiley, Diane Williamson, and Connie Cunningham.

This afternoon at 1:30 o'clock Mrs. Paul Burket will be honored at a stork shower and dessert luncheon at the home of Mrs. Richard Courtney. The hostesses include Mrs. Courtney, Mrs. Joseph Allen, and Mrs. Gerald Custer. Thirty three guests have been invited.

We learned of a new bridge club from Mrs. Frederick Bockoven this morning. The members, Mrs. Bockoven, Mrs. Douglas Brogden, Mrs. Vince Collins, Mrs. Richard Freeman, Mrs. John Cather, Mrs. Robert Scott, Mrs. Boyd Waddell, and Mrs. John Weeks, will be "bridge-ing" it this afternoon at the Bockoven residence.

the bride, and the flower girls were Miss Starla Schneider of Lincoln, and Miss Kathy Dado, Fairmont.

Gayle Galusha of Lincoln served as best man, and the ushers were Gene Kelly, Tilden, and Verdel Schneider of Exeter.

The bride appeared in a gown of white Chantilly-type lace over satin. The strapless bodice was covered by a long-sleeved jacket of lace accented by a tiny, standing collar, and tiers of ruffled lace formed the wide skirt. A bandeau of satin held her illusion veil, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white and pink carnations.

A reception for 150 guests was held in the church parlors. For their wedding trip to Iowa and South Dakota, after which the couple will reside at 1923 B in Lincoln, the bride wore a black and white sheath frock with matching jacket and accessories. The bridegroom has served with the Air Force.

Afternoon Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. HENRY DALE SCHNEIDER

For the marriage of Miss Marlene Elizabeth Kelly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kelly of Page, and Henry Dale Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schneider of Exeter, which was solemnized Sunday afternoon, Sept. 23, lighted white candles and bouquets of pastel-toned flowers decorated the chancel of the Page Methodist Church. The Rev. Lisle Newman read the lines of the 3 o'clock service, and Mrs. Dale Jensen of Exeter, organist, played the wedding music and also accompanied Leland Dado, vocal soloist.

Wearing alike frocks of aqua nylon net over taffeta fashioned in the ballerina mode and completed by shoulder stoles of net were Mrs. Victor Hogtins of Omaha, as the matron of honor, and the bridesmaid, Miss Sherry Stewart of Page, who carried nosegays of white and pink carnations. Lighting the candles was Miss Karen Kay Kelly, sister of

Council Agrees To Ease Parts Of Minimum Housing Proposal

By BILL DOBLER
Star Staff Writer

The City Council has agreed on some significant relaxations of the proposed new minimum standards housing ordinance.

The Council voted to add to the non-retroactive part of the ordinance a section governing room sizes in rooming houses. This section requires a room of 70 square feet for one person or 50 square feet per persons if there is more than one occupant.

It was also agreed upon by the Council that it was too restrictive to require compliance with the ordinance by those structures now exempt if they were remodeled or altered to an extent equal in value to 30 per cent of the county assessed valuation. Informal favor was expressed in support of increasing the 30 per cent figure to at least 50 per cent.

Objections Met

On other points, the Council found from Planning Engineer Douglas Brodgen that many objections to the ordinance had already been corrected. For instance, the provisions of the ordinance would not affect existing basement apartments so long as the units had any window space whatsoever.

Also, the ordinance is nonretroactive in requiring an outside window in kitchens.

In another change, the Council approved deletion of one section which made it illegal to pay rent for a structure which violated the ordinance.

Also objected to at public hearings was the section giving the health officer authority to enter all homes for inspection at any reasonable time. The only change made there was to require the health officer to have proper credentials.

Another alteration approved by the Council changes the 20 to 60 days period in which a dwelling must be brought into compliance after notification of violation. This will be changed to a period of from 20 to 90 days.

The Council study of the measure was not completed. Brodgen is to incorporate into the document the changes approved by the Council and the matter will then be taken up again for further study.

Engineers Hired To Prepare Study Of Water Program

The City Council has approved the hiring of Black & Veatch, consulting engineers from Kansas City, Mo., to prepare an up-to-date report on the current status of Lincoln's water improvement program.

The firm's fee will be between $500 and $1,000. The report is being obtained as part of the brochure the city will issue in connection with the sale of $2.5 million in water revenue bonds.

The $2.5 million is all that remains to be sold out of an authorized sale of $8.5 million. The bonds will go on the market this year.

Much of the work to be financed by the $2.5 million has already been placed under contract.

Bar Association Committee Reports Success In Distribution Of Pamphlets

The Committee on Public Service of the Nebraska Bar Association has reported great success distributing pamphlets dealing with legal questions.

A report of the committee's activities during the past year is prepared for delivery to the Bar Association's annual meeting in Omaha on Oct. 18th and 19th.

The Public Service Committee, headed by John J. Wilson, noted that the demand for the pamphlets has been so great that re-printing has been necessary.

The pamphlets are entitled: "Joint Tenancy"; "Wills"; "Buying and Selling Real Estate"; "Are You Sure You Want to Sign That?" and "What To Do In Case of An Auto Accident".

The committee reported two more pamphlets, on insurance and Social Security, now are in preparation.

The 1955 manual for jurors in Nebraska, according to the committee, has been widely distributed throughout the state and has met with wide success. A copy of the manual is included with each jury summons. Copies were supplied to all counties throughout the state during August.

The committee recommends that the present public service program, including a television program and furnishing of newspaper columns to the state weekly papers, be continued.

In an additional report, the Committee on County Law Libraries reports that the number and quality of county law libraries is increasing slowly. It reports that the advantages of central modern county law libraries should be continuously brought to the attention of the members of the State Bar Association.

State Takes In $3 Million In Gas Taxes

The State of Nebraska received during the month of September more than $3 million in gas taxes, of which $659,346 was turned back to counties for local use.

The total tax taken in during the month was $3,047,075. Of this amount, and the funds going to the counties, $433,564 goes to rural and star mail routes.

Refunds to farmers on agricultural gas used totals $423,177. Refund to dealers totals $17,510.

The State Highway Department was allotted the largest amount, to be used for road building and for matching funds with the federal government. This total was $1,517,475.

The tax distribution was prepared under the direction of State Treasurer Ralph Hill.

Anderson Proclaims Saturday As 'Ike Day'

Gov. Victor Anderson Monday proclaimed next Saturday as "Ike Day."

The governor urged that the United States flag be displayed on "Ike Day" and that Nebraskans join in paying "a warm birthday tribute to a great and beloved American."

The specific purpose of the move is to resurface the street passing along the front of the new Pershing Memorial Auditorium. The job was estimated to cost about $20,000, be assessed back against abutting property owners.

Other ordinance action was:

State Survey Of Airports Scheduled

A survey of Nebraska airports as part of a nationwide effort has been scheduled for Oct. 25th and 27th, according to Steve Gilbert, State Aeronautics Department director.

Two of the objectives of the survey, Gilbert said, will be to point up needs of individual airports and possible navigation aids.

A check of all aircraft movement will be included in the survey and the final report will be given directly to President Eisenhower.

The survey material will be compiled for presentation by Edward Curtis, special aide to the President.

Information Needed

Gilbert Monday said the survey is a "needed thing" in the state. He said Nebraska doesn't have as much information as it needs for airport and navigation planning for the future. The survey, he said, will make a good basis for determining any future needs.

On the airports selected, a record questionnaire is to be completed for each general aviation aircraft taking off and/or landing during the 48-hour period.

State To Monitor

The State Department of Aeronautics will monitor the survey operation with local officials at the various fields conducting the actual gathering of information. Management consultants Boon, Allen, and Hamilton of Chicago selected the airports in Nebraska for inclusion in the survey.

They included, tentatively: Omaha — Municipal Field, Clear Ridge, North Omaha and South Omaha.

Lincoln — Arrow Airport and Union Airport.

Others expected to participate are airports at Ainsworth, Ogallala, and Scottsbluff.

Council Agrees To Ease Parts Of Minimum Housing Proposal

By BILL DOBLER
Star Staff Writer

The City Council has agreed on some significant relaxations of the proposed new minimum standards housing ordinance.

The Council voted to add to the non-retroactive part of the ordinance a section governing room sizes in rooming houses. This section requires a room of 70 square feet for one person or 50 square feet per persons if there is more than one occupant.

It was also agreed upon by the Council that it was too restrictive to require compliance with the ordinance by those structures now exempt if they were remodeled or altered to an extent equal in value to 30 per cent of the county assessed valuation. Informal favor was expressed in support of increasing the 30 per cent figure to at least 50 per cent.

Objections Met

On other points, the Council found from Planning Engineer Douglas Brodgen that many objections to the ordinance had already been corrected. For instance, the provisions of the ordinance would not affect existing basement apartments so long as the units had any window space whatsoever.

Also, the ordinance is nonretroactive in requiring an outside window in kitchens.

In another change, the Council approved deletion of one section which made it illegal to pay rent for a structure which violated the ordinance.

Also objected to at public hearings was the section giving the health officer authority to enter all homes for inspection at any reasonable time. The only change made there was to require the health officer to have proper credentials.

Another alteration approved by the Council changes the 20 to 60 days period in which a dwelling must be brought into compliance after notification of violation. This will be changed to a period of from 20 to 90 days.

The Council study of the measure was not completed. Brodgen is to incorporate into the document the changes approved by the Council and the matter will then be taken up again for further study.

Engineers Hired To Prepare Study Of Water Program

The City Council has approved the hiring of Black & Veach, consulting engineers from Kansas City, Mo., to prepare an up-to-date report on the current status of Lincoln's water improvement program.

The firm's fee will be between $500 and $1,000. The report is being obtained as part of the brochure the city will issue in connection with the sale of $2.5 million in water revenue bonds.

The $2.5 million is all that remains to be sold out of an authorized sale of $8.5 million. The bonds will go on the market this year.

Much of the work to be financed by the $2.5 million has already been placed under contract.

Bar Association Committee Reports Success In Distribution Of Pamphlets

The Committee on Public Service of the Nebraska Bar Association has reported great success distributing pamphlets dealing with legal questions.

A report of the committee's activities during the past year is prepared for delivery to the Bar Association's annual meeting in Omaha on Oct. 18th and 19th.

The Public Service Committee, headed by John J. Wilson, noted that the demand for the pamphlets has been so great that re-printing has been necessary.

The pamphlets are entitled: "Joint Tenancy"; "Wills"; "Buying and Selling Real Estate"; "Are You Sure You Want to Sign That?" and "What To Do In Case of An Auto Accident".

The committee reported two more pamphlets, on insurance and Social Security, now are in preparation.

The 1955 manual for jurors in Nebraska, according to the committee, has been widely distributed throughout the state and has met with wide success. A copy of the manual is included with each jury summons. Copies were supplied to all counties throughout the state during August.

The committee recommends that the present public service program, including a television program and furnishing of newspaper columns to the state weekly papers, be continued.

In an additional report, the Committee on County Law Libraries reports that the number and quality of county law libraries is increasing slowly. It reports that the advantages of central modern county law libraries should be continuously brought to the attention of the members of the State Bar Association.

The tax distribution was prepared under the direction of State Treasurer Ralph Hill.

A survey of Nebraska airports as part of a nationwide effort has been scheduled for Oct. 26th and 27th, according to Steve Gilbert, State Aeronautics Department director.

Two of the objectives of the survey, Gilbert said, will be to point up needs of individual airports and possible navigation aids.

A check of all aircraft movement will be included in the survey and the final report will be given directly to President Eisenhower. The survey material will be compiled for presentation by Edward Curtis, special aide to the President.

Information Needed
Gilbert Monday said the survey is a "needed thing" in the state. He said Nebraska doesn't have as much information as it needs for airport and navigation planning for the future. The survey, he said, will make a good basis for determining any future needs.

On the airports selected, a record questionnaire is to be completed for each general aviation aircraft taking off and/or landing during the 48-hour period.

State To Monitor
The State Department of Aeronautics will monitor the survey operation with local officials at the various fields conducting the actual gathering of information. Management consultants Booz, Allen, and Hamilton of Chicago selected the airports in Nebraska for inclusion in the survey.

They included, tentatively: Omaha — Municipal Field, Clear Ridge, North Omaha and South Omaha.
Lincoln — Arrow Airport and Union Airport.

BAERING DOWN ON THE NEWS By Arthur 'Bugs' Boer

Looks like world peace is going for another moonlight sail down the drain.

Long ago we discovered that war didn't prove a thing. You have to hold a peace conference to find out how people hate one another.

Here's a little reprint from September, 1946, ten years ago: "I still claim the Dardanelles are no more use to Russia than a bicycle in a storm at sea."

"The Straits constitute a bottle with two necks at Gibraltar and Suez. That's as plain as the trunk on an elephant's snout."

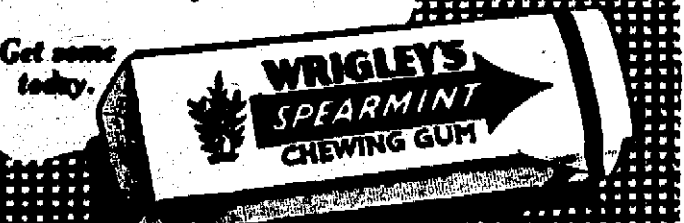

"However, if Stalin got into Mussolini's lake he would have a Marine road map for leading a tough bull across a trestle bridge. Uncle Joe has a nuisance value he can sell at a big profit right now."

That was ten years ago when we warned the world the United Nations architect made a mistake making the reception room larger than the complaint department.

At the same time we covered the first conference thisaway, "Molotov acts like Russia had defeated its Allies."

Yank Playboy Stops Brooklyn; No Runs, No Hits, No Errors

Larsen Deliberates Before Last Pitch

Yankee Pitcher Don Larsen, one strike from perfectly pitched game, stands with his back to the batter, head bowed, as he gets ready to throw a called third strike past Dodger Pinch-Hitter Dale Mitchell. He touched his fingers to the resin bag only briefly and then fired the third strike to become the first pitcher to hurl a perfect game in the Series. (For Catcher Yogi Berra's reaction after the final out, note picture at right). (AP Wirephoto).

'I Hope My Ma Saw Me'

By TONY GALLI
NEW YORK (INS) — "Last week you could have bought him for a nickel," one Dodger fan exclaimed. But Don Larsen was worth a cool million to the Yankees Monday after pitching the first perfect game in the 53-year history of the World Series.
The 27-year-old righthander from San Diego, Cal., came up to New York from Baltimore after the 1954 season in the 13-player trade which featured the Yankees' swap of Catcher Gus Triandos for Bullet Bob Turley.
Larsen promptly was exiled to Denver, where he compiled a 9-1 record. Came back for a 9-2 season at New York and this season was the Bombers' hottest September pitcher, winning four games with an 0.26 earned run average.
Don, 11-5 for the season, was making his second start of the current series and third of his career. He failed to hold a 6-0 lead for the Yanks in the second Yankee defeat, but Monday he was one out (and ten bases on balls) better than Floyd Bevens, who had the previous record of 8 2-3 innings in a series without a hit.

Larsen threw only 97 pitches while turning out only the fifth perfect game in the 80-year history of major league baseball.
"I thought of a no-hitter a couple of times off and on but I didn't let it bother me," a smiling, tired Larsen said slumping into his locker stool after carrying Catcher Yogi Berra off the field on his back. "I wanted to win, that's all. I hope my Maw was watching at home in California."
"She only saw me pitch once and never in the majors except on television."
"I thought about Bevens once or twice and I said to myself: 'I sure hope it doesn't happen to me, that ninth inning hit.'"
"I came close to a no-hitter a couple of times before but I never pitched a game without giving up a walk," the perspiring Bomber hero said. "I had one lost in the seventh or eighth inning against Washington in 1953 and Andy Carey broke one up in the eighth for me in 1954."

"That Andy Carey sure made a great catch today," Larsen reflected. "So did Mickey Mantle and Gil McDougald. They were all great, especially Yogi. He called one hell of a great game. I shook him off once or twice but just to confuse the hitters."
"I'm still numb," Larsen continued. "That one foul into the stands by Sandy Amoros worried me there."
Larsen was bubbling forth, one statement after another, from one subject to another. "I had a couple of beers Sunday night and went to bed about 12, he said. "Didn't do anything out of the ordinary. I took a couple of drags on a cigarette about every inning during the game."

Dodger President Walter O'Malley came in and extended a congratulatory hand to Larsen. "You were both great," Walter said with a plug for loser Sal Maglie. "You almost needed a no-hitter to beat Sal."
Larsen, who was born in Michigan City, Ind. of Norwegian parents, but now is a resident of Berkeley, Cal., wasn't forgetting his rival, the man who had stilled the Yanks with ten strikeouts opening day. He said:
"Maglie pitched a hell of a game. They were right. I almost needed a no-hitter to beat him. He never gave up. He came right back, tougher than ever, when Mantle hit that homer."

Perfect Game Gives Yankees 3-2 Series Lead

By BOB CONSIDINE
NEW YORK (INS) — Don Larsen, 27-year-old Yankee playboy, carved his own glittering niche in baseball's Hall of Fame Monday by pitching a supernaturally perfect game.
He beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 0, to send the Yanks ahead 3-to-2 in World Series games, and so utterly matchless was he that he would have needed only Mickey Mantle's bases-empty home run in the fourth to seal his historic triumph.
It was the first no-hitter in the whole long and lovely history of the World Series.
It was the first major league perfect game—no hits, no runners ever on bases, 27 men up and 27 men down—since Charlie Robertson of the White Sox worked the breathless miracle against Detroit in April 34 years ago.
Larsen, one-time occupant of Manager Casey Stengel's doghouse for trying to make every night a New Year's Eve, flung only 97 pitches at the stupefied Dodgers.
Only one Dodger hitter, Pee Wee Reese in the first inning, was given as many as three balls. Larsen struck him out and six others—including Pinch-Hitter Dale Mitchell, the last man.
The sweat gushed from the long, lean Yankee righthander in the excruciating tense eighth and ninth innings as men with menacing clubs came up to the plate intent on breaking the spell. They swung with the utter honesty and integrity of the sport itself, determined to make him earn his place in history.
He would take off his cap, out there on the mound, and shake the sweat from it, and rub his sleeve across his bearded forehead. And then he would take his place on the slab, study what Yogi Berra was quietly signalling him, bring his hands up to his body with an almost prayerful gesture, and let it go—minus windup.
The crowd of 64,519, and many millions throughout the country and the world, shared his ordeal and this matchless hour in baseball annals. On the Yankee bench, the players had stopped speaking to him from the fifth inning on, fearful that some word or deed would jinx him and deprive him of what is now an authentic place in American folklore.
When Larsen came to bat in the eighth on Monday the vast old stadium shook with the thunder of acclaim, and torn programs fluttered down from on high in a blizzard reserved locally for visiting potentates and early swimmers of the English channel.
But that din was but a whisper compared to the almost crazed ovation that built up in the ninth. All else but the no-hitter had been driven from the mind of the mob. Nothing else mattered, no world crisis, no tax, no tribulations, no possession.
Even Sal Maglie, sad old victim of Larsen's magic, was forgotten—though he was a better pitcher in defeat Monday than he was in victory in the first game of the series.
Carl Furillo, a hard man to discourage, was the first Dodger hitter in the ninth. He fouled off twice and very loudly into the stands before lifting a fly to Hank Bauer in right. A gush of relief spilled from the crowded stands.
Roy Campanella was next. Larsen, wet with sweat though it was a pleasantly cool afternoon, confronted the Dodger catcher with great deliberation. In time, Campy swung. It was a grounder to Billy Martin, who played the ball as if it was a pellet of uranium.
Now Mitchell, soon destined to become the seventh straight Dodger pinch hitter who has failed in the series, Dale is a clean-swinging, clean-living professional who is kind to children and dogs. But no man living was "for" him as he stood up there, the last human barricade between Larsen and immortality.
Larsen breezed the first pitch past him and the fans let loose an almost murderous yell. Then a ball, which produced a gigantic groan. Then a foul that knocked the wind out of the crowd. And then a dancing, wonderful, curve ball that cut the heart of the plate for a called third strike—and the end of the unforgettable game.
Yogi Berra was the first to reach Larsen. The squat catcher jumped for him, wrapped his arms and legs around him and hung on, while Larsen staggered toward the dugout. The whole Yankee bench was now on his shoulders or around him.
"I'm still numb. . . I'm still numb," the pitcher kept repeating for a long time after the game.

Larsen's Control Sharp; Tosses Only 97 Pitches

Phil Rizzuto, who played in nine World Series for the Yankees, is covering the World Series for International News Service and The Lincoln Star.
By PHIL RIZZUTO
NEW YORK (INS) — This one was really exciting. No matter how many games you play in or see, something like this—a World Series perfect game—leaves you breathless.
Most of the trouble that Don Larsen had in the second game at Ebbets Field was due to poor control. He allowed only one hit, but he walked four men before Casey took him out of there in the second inning.
Monday, his control was just about perfect. He threw only 97 pitches, and only one batter—Pee Wee Reese, the old pro, in the first inning—worked the count to three balls. Pee Wee reached 3-and-2 and then took a called third strike.
You could tell that Larsen was really fooling the Dodgers, because there were so many called strikes.
Of course, you don't pitch a no-hitter or a perfect game without help. Yogi Berra must have called a perfect game behind the plate, too, because Don didn't shake off his sign once all day.
And there were several nice fielding plays. Mickey Mantle not only hit the homer that would have been enough to beat the Dodgers, but he made a great running catch of Hodges' liner to left center in the fifth.
Gil McDougald, who has been doing an excellent job at shortstop, made a couple of good plays. One didn't seem important at the time because it was only the second inning, but that was when Jackie Robinson's liner deflected off Andy Carey's glove and Gil picked up the ball and threw Jackie out from deep short.
My heart was in my mouth in the eighth when Hodges tried to stop his swing and hit that little liner between short and third. It looked as if it might get through for a single, which would be a tough way to lose a no-hitter.
But Carey grabbed it at his shoelaps, and I'm sure it went a long way to make up for the fielding troubles Andy had in previous games.
Incidentally, this was probably the last game Babe Pinelli ever will umpire behind the plate. He plans to retire after this series. He certainly wound up his long career on a high note.
You know, both Larsen and Bob Turley started using this effective no-windup delivery during the American League season. Casey Stengel says he won't decide until he sees them warm up Tuesday whether Turley or Johnny Kucks will pitch.
But after the way Larsen baffled them Monday, I know Casey will be wondering if it wouldn't be a good idea to come right back with Turley and the same type of delivery.
Bob's faced four men so far in two brief appearances in this series, and he's fanned three of them. The Yankees really needed this last one in their own stadium. Now they only have to win one more in Ebbets Field to wrap up the series. I know that is a big order, because they've lost the last five series played over there and seven of the last eight.
But they've got two chances to do it, and Monday's victory should do a lot for their morale.

Don's Wife Demands Series $

NEW YORK (P)—Donald James Larsen — the Don Larsen who pitched a perfect game Monday in leading the New York Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series — was named in a Bronx Supreme Court action by his estranged wife, who claims he owes her back support payments and wants his World Series money held up.
The action involving Larsen, whose home was listed as San Diego, Calif., was brought by Vivian A. Larsen, the Bronx, who claims the pitcher owes her $420 in back support payments.
Mrs. Larsen obtained a show cause order from Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hoisstadter. It is returnable Oct. 15.
The court order requires Larsen, the New York Yankees baseball club, and Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, to show cause why Larsen's World Series money should not be withheld from him and set aside for support payments.

Huskers' Stinnett Given OK

Miceli Drubs Giovanelli
NEW YORK (P)—Joe Miceli, a 4-1 underdog in a sudden switch of odds, Monday night upset the dope by flooring and soundly drubbing Danny Giovanelli for a unanimous decision in a 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Miceli weighed 145½, Giovanelli 150¼ for the all-New York battle.
It was even money all week until Giovanelli backers sent the odds rocketing at fight time.
The officials voted for Miceli this way:
Judge Joe Eppy, 7-2-1; Judge Bert Grant, 6-3-1 and Referee Ray Miller, 5-4-1. The AP scorecard had Miceli a big winner, 8-2.
Making his first appearance in his hometown after five bouts on the road, Miceli got off fast with his hard lefts. Although he telegraphed his punches, collect, Giovanelli couldn't escape them. It was as if Miceli had some iron in his fist and Danny had a magnet on his jaw.
CLUBHOUSE QUOTES
By International News Service
DON LARSEN — "I thought of a no-hitter a couple of times off and on, but I didn't let it bother me. I wanted to win, that's all. I hope my maw was watching at home in California."
WALTER ALTON — "Larsen pitched a helluva game. Don't forget Sal; I think he pitched better Monday than in winning the first game. Clem Labine will go Tuesday, and probably Don Newcombe the next day."
PEE WEE REESE — "What can you say when a guy throws a perfect game at you. Larsen was terrific."
SAL MAGLIE — "Mantle hit a fast ball. Larsen was great today. I feel fine, and I'm ready if the skipper wants me again."
CASEY STENGEL — "It will be Johnny Kucks or Bob Turley Tuesday. I won't decide until I see them both warm up."
YOGI BERRA — "Larsen never shook off a sign. He's a strong boy. Fast balls, sliders and a slow curve did it."
Slider Don's Only Bad Pitch—Yogi
NEW YORK (P)—Catcher Yogi Berra said pitcher Don Larsen made only one bad pitch in his perfect no-hit, no-run victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers Monday in the fifth World Series game.
"That was the pitch to Gil Hodges in the fifth inning," the Yankee catcher said. "Hodges hit it to deep left center and it took a great running catch by Mickey Mantle to get it."
"It was a slider which hung—when they hang, it's dangerous."

Top NU Quarterback To See Action Against Kansas State

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star
Those Huskers who fought long and hard to defeat Iowa State last Saturday took a well-earned rest Monday afternoon, loosening up in sweat clothes and then showering.
Those who didn't see action got in a few scrimmage licks with the University of Nebraska freshmen.
Intensive preparations for Kansas State will begin Tuesday, but Coach Pete Elliott indicated there wouldn't be too much contact work this week.
"One thing we have to do, is develop our passing game," Elliott said. "We got to get more balance between our running and passing."
In three games, the Cornhuskers have thrown 21 times—an average of seven per game—and completed 11 for 161 yards. Their running game has accounted for 746 yards for a total of 907 yards. Quarterback Roy Stinnett is the No. 2 passer in the conference, with seven completions in 12 tries for 89 yards.
Elliott reported Monday that Stinnett's ankle injury wasn't as serious as first feared and that he would be ready for Kansas State.
He worked out lightly Monday and has been okayed for contact work this week.
Only Halfback Bennie Dillard appears definitely lost for the Wildcat encounter. He suffered a reinjury of the knee against Iowa State.
Max Kitzelman will "probably be ready," but there's still a chance his strained shoulder won't be properly healed by Saturday.
Leo George, the halfback who held the ball for George Harshman's winning field goal last Saturday, is ready for full duty. He was nursing a charley horse last

Good Day Predicted

NEW YORK (P)—The weather man Monday promised another good day for baseball for the sixth game of the World Series at Ebbets Field Tuesday.
"Mostly fair and windy with highest temperatures in the 60s" was the forecast.
Yanks 3-1 Favorites
NEW YORK (P) With a 3-2 edge in games, the New York Yankees Monday night were made a 3-1 favorite to win the World Series from Brooklyn. Tuesday's sixth game will be rated even in the betting—11/10 and take your pick.

Yankee Manager Casey Stengel is undecided about his pitching choice for the sixth game of the World Series at Ebbets Field today.

Brooklyn Dodger Pilot Walt Alston named Clem Labine as his choice to keep the Dodgers in the series.

Yank Playboy Stops Brooklyn; No Runs, No Hits, No Errors

Perfect Game Gives Yankees 3-2 Series Lead

By BOB CONSIDINE
NEW YORK (INS)—Don Larsen, 27-year-old Yankee playboy, carved his own glittering niche in baseball's Hall of Fame Monday by pitching a supernaturally perfect game.

He beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2 to 0, to send the Yanks ahead 3-to-2 in World Series games, and so utterly matchless was he that he would have needed only Mickey Mantle's bases-empty home run in the fourth to seal his historic triumph.

It was the first no-hitter in the whole long and lovely history of the World Series.

It was the first major league perfect game—no hits, no runners ever on bases, 27 men up and 27 men down—since Charlie Robertson of the White Sox worked the breathless miracle against Detroit in April 34 years ago.

Larsen, one-time occupant of Manager Casey Stengel's doghouse for trying to make every night a New Year's Eve, flung only 97 pitches at the stupefied Dodgers.

Only one Dodger hitter, Pee Wee Reese in the first inning, was given as many as three balls. Larsen struck him out and six others—including Pinch-Hitter Dale Mitchell, the last man.

The sweat gushed from the long, lean Yankee right-hander in the excruciating tense eighth and ninth innings as men with menacing clubs came up to the plate intent on breaking the spell. They swung with the utter honesty and integrity of the sport itself, determined to make him earn his place in history.

He would take off his cap, out there on the mound, and shake the sweat from it, and rub his sleeve across his bearded forehead. And then he would take his place on the slab, study what Yogi Berra was quietly signaling him, bring his hands up to his body with an almost prayerful gesture, and let it go—minus windup.

The crowd of 64,519, and many millions throughout the country and the world, shared his ordeal and his matchless hour in baseball annals. On the Yankee bench, the players had stopped speaking to him from the fifth inning on, fearful that some word or deed would flunk him and deprive him of what is now an authentic place in American folklore.

When Larsen came to bat in the eighth on Monday the vast old stadium shook with the thunder of acclaim, and torn programs fluttered down from on high in a blizzard reserved locally for visiting potentates and early swimmers of the English channel.

But that din was but a whisper compared to the almost crazed ovation that built up in the ninth. All else but the no-hitter had been driven from the mind of the mob. Nothing else mattered, no world crisis, no tax, no tribulations, no possession.

Even Sal Maglie, said old victim of Larsen's magic, was forgotten—though he was a better pitcher in defeat Monday than he was in victory in the first game of the series.

Carl Furillo, a hard man to discourage, was the first Dodger to hit in the ninth. He fouled off twice and very loudly into the stands before lifting a fly to Hank Bauer in right. A gush of relief spilled from the crowded stands.

Roy Campanella was next. Larsen, wet with sweat though it was a pleasantly cool afternoon, confronted the Dodger catcher with great deliberation. In time, Campy swung. It was a grounder to Billy Martin, who played the ball as if it was a pellet of uranium.

Now Mitchell, soon destined to become the seventh straight Dodger pinch hitter who has failed in the series, Dale is a clean-swinging, clean-living professional who is kind to children and dogs. But no man living was "for" him as he stood up there, the last human barricade between Larsen and immortality.

Larsen breezed the first pitch past him and the fans let loose an almost murderous yell. Then a ball, which produced a gigantic groan. Then a foul that knocked the wind out of the crowd. And then a dancing, wonderful, curve ball that cut the heart of the plate for a called third strike—and the end of the unforgettable game.

Yogi Berra was the first to reach Larsen. The squat catcher jumped for him, wrapped his arms and legs around him and hung on, while Larsen staggered toward the dugout. The whole Yankee bench was now on his shoulders or around him.

"I'm still numb. . . I'm still numb," the pitcher kept repeating for a long time after the game.

Good Day Predicted
NEW YORK (AP)—The weather man Monday promised another good day for baseball for the sixth game of the World Series at Ebbets Field Tuesday.

"Mostly fair and windy with highest temperatures in the 60s" was the forecast.

Larsen's Control Sharp; Tosses Only 97 Pitches

Phil Rizzuto, who played in nine World Series for the Yankees, is covering the World Series for International News Service and The Lincoln Star.

By PHIL RIZZUTO
NEW YORK (INS)—This one was really exciting. No matter how many games you play in or see, something like this—a World Series perfect game—leaves you breathless.

Most of the trouble that Don Larsen had in the second game at Ebbets Field was due to poor control. He allowed only one hit, but he walked four men before Casey took him out of there in the second inning.

Monday, his control was just about perfect. He threw only 97 pitches, and only one batter—Pee Wee Reese, the old pro, in the first inning—worked the count to three balls. Pee Wee reached 3-and-2 and then took a called third strike.

You could tell that Larsen was really fooling the Dodgers, because there were so many called strikes.

Of course, you don't pitch a no-hitter or a perfect game without help. Yogi Berra must have called a perfect game behind the plate, too, because Don didn't shake off his sign once all day.

And there were several nice fielding plays. Mickey Mantle not only hit the homer that would have been enough to beat the Dodgers, but he made a great running catch of Hodges' liner to left center in the fifth.

Gil McDougald, who has been doing an excellent job at shortstop, made a couple of good plays. One didn't seem important at the time because it was only the second inning, but that was when Jackie Robinson's liner deflected off Andy Carey's glove and Gil picked up the ball and threw Jackie out from deep short.

My heart was in my mouth in the eighth when Hodges tried to stop his swing and hit that little liner between short and third. It looked as if it might get through for a single, which would be a tough way to lose a no-hitter.

But Carey grabbed it at his shoelaps, and I'm sure it went a long way to make up for the fielding troubles Andy had in previous games.

Incidentally, this was probably the last game Babe Pinelli ever will umpire behind the plate. He plans to retire after this season. He's been with the "big league" career on a high note.

You know, both Larsen and Bob Turley started using this effective no-windup delivery during the American League season. Casey Stengel says he won't decide until he sees them warm up Tuesday whether Turley or Johnny Kucks will pitch.

But after the way Larsen baffled them Monday, I know Casey will be wondering if it wouldn't be a good idea to come right back with Turley and the same type of delivery.

Bob's faced four men so far in two brief appearances in this series, and he's fanned three of them. The Yankees really needed this last one in their own stadium. Now they only have to win one more in Ebbets Field to wrap up the series. I know that is a big order, because they've lost the last five series played over there and seven of the last eight.

But they've got two chances to do it, and Monday's victory should do a lot for their morale.

Larsen Deliberates Before Last Pitch

Yankee Pitcher Don Larsen, one strike from perfectly pitched game, stands with his back to the batter, head bowed, as he gets ready to throw a called third strike past Dodger Pinch-Hitter Dale Mitchell. He touched his fingers to the resin bag only briefly and then fired the third strike to become the first pitcher to hurl a perfect game in the Series. 'I Hope My Ma Saw Me'

By TONY GALLI
NEW YORK (INS)—"Last week you could have bought him for a nickel," one Dodger fan exclaimed. But Don Larsen was worth a cool million to the Yankees Monday after pitching the first perfect game in the 53-year history of the World Series.

The 27-year-old right-hander from San Diego, Cal., came up to New York from Baltimore after the 1954 season in the 13-player trade which featured the Yankees' swap of Catcher Gus Triandos for Bullet Bob Turley.

Larsen promptly was exiled to Denver, where he compiled a 9-1 record. Came back for a 9-2 season at New York and this season was the Bombers' hottest September pitcher, winning four games with an 0.26 earned run average. Don, 11-5 for the season, was making his second start of the current series and third of his career. He failed to hold a 6-0 lead for the Yanks in the second Yankee defeat, but Monday he was one out (and ten bases on balls) better than Floyd Bevens, who had the previous record of 8 2-3 innings in a series without a hit.

Larsen threw only 97 pitches while turning out only the fifth perfect game in the 80-year history of major league baseball.

"I thought of a no-hitter a couple of times off and on, but I didn't let it bother me," a smiling, tired Larsen said slumping into his locker stool after carrying Catcher Yogi Berra off the field on his back. "I wanted to win, that's all. I hope my Ma was watching at home in California."

"She only saw me pitch once and never in the majors except on television."

"I thought about Bevens once or twice and I said to myself: 'I sure hope it doesn't happen to me, that ninth inning hit.'"

"I came close to a no-hitter a couple of times before but I never pitched a game without giving up a walk," the perspiring Bomber hero said. "I had one lost in the seventh or eighth inning against Washington in 1953 and Andy Carey broke one up in the eighth for me in 1954."

"That Andy Carey sure made a great catch today," Larsen reflected. "So did Mickey Mantle and Gil McDougald. They were all great, especially Yogi. He called one hell of a great game. I shook him off once or twice but just to confuse the hitters."

"I'm still numb," Larsen continued. "That one foul into the stands by Sandy Amoros worried me there."

Larsen was bubbling forth, one statement after another, from one subject to another. "I had a couple of beers Sunday night and went to bed about 12, he said. "Didn't do anything out of the ordinary. I took a couple of drags on a cigarette about every inning during the game."

Dodger President Walter O'Malley came in and extended a congratulatory hand to Larsen. "You were both great," Walter said with a plug for loser Sal Maglie. "You almost needed a no-hitter to beat Sal."

Larsen, who was born in Michigan City, Ind. of Norwegian parents, but now is a resident of Berkeley, Cal., wasn't forgetting his rival, the man who had stilled the Yanks with ten strikeouts opening day. He said:

"Maglie pitched a hell of a game. They were right. I almost needed a no-hitter to beat him. He never gave up. He came right back, tougher than ever, when Mantle hit that homer."

Huskers' Stinnett Given OK

Miceli Drubs Giovanelli
NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Miceli, a 4-1 underdog in a sudden switch of odds, Monday night upset the dope by flooring and soundly drubbing Danny Giovanelli for a unanimous decision in a 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Miceli weighed 143½, Giovanelli 150½ for the all-New York battle.

It was even money all week until Giovanelli backers sent the odds rocketing at fight time.

The officials voted for Miceli this way:

Judge Joe Eppy, 7-2-1; Judge Bert Grant, 6-3-1 and Referee Ray Miller, 5-4-1. The AP scorecard had Miceli a big winner, 8-2.

Making his first appearance in his hometown after five bouts on the road, Miceli got off fast with his hard lefts. Although he telegraphed his punches, collect, Giovanelli couldn't escape them. It was as if Miceli had some iron in his fist and Danny had a magnet on his jaw.

DON LARSEN — "I thought of a no-hitter a couple of times off and on, but I didn't let it bother me. I wanted to win, that's all. I hope my maw was watching at home in California."

WALTER ALTON — "Larsen pitched a helluva game. Don't forget Sal; I think he pitched better Monday than in winning the first game. Clem Labine will go Tuesday, and probably Don Newcombe the next day."

PEE WEE REESE — "What can you say when a guy throws a perfect game at you. Larsen was terrific."

SAL MAGLIE — "Mantle hit a fast ball. Larsen was great today. I feel fine, and I'm ready if the skipper wants me again."

CASEY STENDEL — "It will be Johnny Kucks or Bob Turley Tuesday. I won't decide until I see them both warm up."

YOGI BERRA — "Larsen never shook off a sign. He's a strong boy. Fast balls, sliders and a slow curve did it."

Slider Don's Only Bad Pitch—Yogi
NEW YORK (AP)—Catcher Yogi Berra said pitcher Don Larsen made only one bad pitch in his perfect no-hit, no-run victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers Monday in the fifth World Series game.

"That was the pitch to Gil Hodges in the fifth inning," the Yankee catcher said. "Hodges hit it to deep left center and it took a great running catch by Mickey Mantle to grab it."

"It was a slider which hung—when they hang, it's dangerous."

Top NU Quarterback To See Action Against Kansas State

By DON BRYANT
Sports Editor, The Star

Those Huskers who fought long and hard to defeat Iowa State last Saturday took a well-earned rest Monday afternoon, loosening up in sweat clothes and then showering.

Those who didn't see action got in a few scrimmage licks with the University of Nebraska freshmen.

Intensive preparations for Kansas State will begin Tuesday, but Coach Pete Elliott indicated there wouldn't be too much contact work this week.

"One thing we have to do, is develop our passing game," Elliott said. "We got to get more balance between our running and passing."

In three games, the Cornhuskers have thrown 21 times—an average of seven per game—and completed game, accounted for 746 yards for a total of 907 yards.

Quarterback Roy Stinnett is the No. 2 passer in the conference, with seven completions in 12 tries for 89 yards.

Elliott reported Monday that Stinnett's ankle injury wasn't as serious as first feared and that he would be ready for Kansas State.

He worked out lightly Monday and has been okay for contact work this week.

Only Halfback Bennie Dillard appears definitely lost for the Wildcat encounter. He suffered a re-injury of the knee against Iowa State.

Max Kitzelman will "probably be ready," but there's still a chance his strained shoulder won't be properly healed by Saturday.

Don's Wife Demands Series $

NEW YORK (AP)—Donald James Larsen—the Don Larsen who pitched a perfect game Monday in leading the New York Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series—was named in a Bronx Supreme Court action by his estranged wife, who claims he owes her back support payments and wants his World Series money held up.

The action involving Larsen, whose home was listed as San Diego, Calif., was brought by Vivian A. Larsen, the Bronx, who claims the pitcher owes her $420 in back support payments.

Mrs. Larsen obtained a show cause order from Supreme Court Justice Samuel H. Hofstadter. It is returnable Oct. 15.

The court order requires Larsen, the New York Yankees baseball club, and Ford Erick, commissioner of baseball, to show cause why Larsen's World Series money should not be withheld from him and set aside for support payments.

By RON GIBSON
Star Sports Staff Writer

The Star's high school football ratings in Classes B and C were shuffled considerably as several rated teams fell last week, but a familiar name emerged on top in Class C—Grant.

Coach Ed Haefler's Grant club, beaten by strong Class B Ogallala in its opener, replaces West Point as the Class C leader. Enrollment figures show West Point has climbed to Class B, and the Cadets are in the Top Ten in that class.

Grant blitzed Chappell 33-0 last week after pounding Trenton 31-13 the week before. Trenton owned a win over strong Cambridge, which has done well since then.

Crete stands alone as the cream of the Class B crop. The Cardinals protected their first-place rating by beating York 32-7 last week.

Class B

Crete is again easily the best. Bellevue is a strong second and Ogallala, rated third, appears to be developing. The rest are scrambled.

Four teams fell from the chart this week. Stanton, formerly the second-place club, was the highest-ranking casualty.

Pierce beat Stanton 6-0 and is fourth in the ratings. Stanton, which had a long win streak going prior to the Pierce game, is now rated a strong threat but must bounce back to make the Top Ten.

Plus X of Lincoln lost to Class C David City St. Mary's, 13-7, and gave way. Plus has few more strong foes but could get back in with a win over Omaha Holy Name, the upcoming opponent.

York and Seward were other casualties. York fell victim to Crete and Seward, unable to get rolling, was tied by Schuyler. York had been seventh and Seward tenth.

New teams in the Top Ten are Pierce, Plainview, West Point and Minatare.

Pierce, unbeaten in three outings and impressive in a win over Stanton, is the fourth-place club. West Point, the former Class B leader, made the grade at ninth and Plainview is sixth.

Minatare, now looking like the power of the Panhandle, is tenth. Other moves saw Ogallala climb from sixth to third with a convincing win over Gering; Holdrege moved from ninth to sixth after pounding Curtis 29-0; and Cozad dropping from fourth to seventh after a loss to Kearney.

Class C

Grant, The Star's 1955 champion in Class C, is looking stronger now after an early 12-6 loss to Ogallala. That defeat is less damning as Ogallala continues to cut a swath in Class B.

St. Paul, the number nine club last week, zoomed to the second spot by downing Scotia 26-13. Scotia was unbeaten, untied, unscored upon and in second place prior to meeting St. Paul.

Oshkosh is third after being eighth last week. This club downed Imperial, a tough Class B team 14-13 and has a 4-0 record. Oshkosh and Grant have a showdown Nov. 9, but Oshkosh has important business with strong Class B Minatare next week.

Arcadia, winner of 16 straight and unscored upon in 12 straight games, climbed from fifth to fourth. There is little to choose between Arcadia and the fifth club, Arnold. Arnold hasn't yielded a score this year and is 4-0 for the season.

Arnold, unrated last week, is one of three new Class C teams in this week's chart.

Morrill, rebounding after a one-point loss to Minatare in the season opener, came in at eighth. David City St. Mary's, the 1955 six-man king, joined the select group at sixth after beating Pius X. St. Mary's has not lost a game since the school opened last year.

Seward Concordia is seventh. Concordia faces St. Mary's later this season.

Alma is ninth behind Morrill. Alma dropped from seventh despite breaking a long Bertrand win streak. Bertrand, barely able to get by weak West Kearney, held Alma to 6-13.

Deshler, the Class C leader two weeks ago, is tenth for the second week in a row.

3 WARRIORS NAMED FOR '56 PETROW AWARD

FREMONT—Three 1956 Midland College graduates have been selected as candidates for the Petrow Memorial Trophy to be presented at the Homecoming dance Oct. 27.

Ron Donahue, Twyman Jones, and Bob Rump are the candidates for Midland's highest athletic award.

Candidates are chosen on the basis of their participation in athletics. All lettermen are eligible for the honor.

Donahue has received four letters in football, four letters in basketball, four letters in tennis and one letter in track.

Two letters in basketball and two in baseball were awarded to Jones.

He put Midland's baseball team into the regional NAIA playoffs at Hastings last year by pitching and winning both ends of a double header.

Letters received by Rump include two in football, four year letters in basketball and four in tennis.

Rump helped Midland keep the NCC tennis doubles championship for three years.

At an election last spring nine men were chosen by the student body. A special committee, set up by the Warrior staff, then voted on those nine candidates. The above three were chosen.

The memorial was first presented by the yearbook staff in 1946 as a tribute to Midland's all-around athlete, George (Babe) Petrow.

Richards To Get Better Contract

BALTIMORE, Md., (INS) — The Baltimore News-Post said Monday that Orioles Manager Paul Richards will soon sign a new contract as a "reward for turning down lucrative offers from the Cleveland Indians and Detroit Tigers."

Richards' present contract expires at the end of 1957. The contract, the News-Post said, will be torn up and rewritten, extending Richards' agreement through 1959.

He serves as field manager and general manager.

BROWN

Delany Will Run For Irish Team

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ron Delany, Villanova University's 3.59 miler, has been named by the Irish Olympic Council for competition in the 1956 Olympic Games starting in November in Melbourne, Australia.

The 21-year-old junior from Dublin was notified of his selection Monday by letter. He will enter the 1,500-meter and the 800-meter events for Ireland.

Delany has won 12 of 14 mile events that he has entered in this country. He set his 3.59 mark last June at the Compton Invitational Track Meet in California, defeating Denmark's Gunnar Nielsen.

Beechner, Pfeiff To Talk In Omaha

The Nebraska-Iowa Association of Athletic Officials will meet Tuesday in Omaha for the first in a series of gatherings for the year.

Ralph Beechner, co-ordinator of physical education for the Lincoln Public Schools and Bill Pfeiff, athletic director of Lincoln High School will discuss improving sports officiating.

The two are the first of a number of speakers scheduled for the meetings including Dr. Irv Peterson, Alex George, John Waldorf, Elroy Hirsch and Bill Orwig, according to Lloyd Berg, president of the group.

YOU BE THE QUARTERBACK ANSWER

- Reverse. Worst call. Usually the line against a split-T formation is virtually a nine-man wall. This line would be well set up to take care of a single reverse.
- Fullback down middle. Not too bad. Good opportunity for short yardage.
- Double reverse. If that nine-man line rotates against the simple reverse, it could be vulnerable against the double.
- Pass. Best call. Assuming the defense is using a 5-4-2 (five linemen, four line-backers, two deep men) or a nine-man front as we call it, the ends and one wing-back of the Spartans should be able to flood the deep zones of Indiana and get a man free.

Fullback Brown Takes Over As Top NU Ground Gainer

Jerry Brown of Minden, the Nebraska Cornhuskers' ace fullback who was the ball-carrying stand-out against Iowa State, is the Huskers' leading ground gainer after three games.

Brown, a junior, has an 8.8 average, gaining 176 yards in 20 carries. He picked up 121 yards against the Cyclones, 71 of them on a second-quarter touchdown run.

Beatrice's Bill Hawkins is second with 172 yards.

Weimaraner Trials Set For Oct. 13-14

MARYSVILLE, Kan. — Final plans have been worked out for the Weimaraner Club of America's Field Trial and Open All-Breed Shooting Dog Stakes.

Present plans call for six stakes to be run over a two day period beginning Saturday, Oct. 13 and ending Sunday, Oct. 14 at the trial grounds located four and one-half miles south of Marysville on U.S. Highway 77.

The trial grounds are to consist of two fields, a birdfield and a backfield. The dogs are scheduled to run 22 minutes in the backfield and eight minutes in the birdfield and will be recorded under American Field requirements.

Malcolm J. MacLeod of Marysville, chairman in charge of the trial, is urging all persons interested to attend.

The Brooks used their "Boudreau Shift" against Mickey Mantle on the switcher's first two trips to the plate. They might just as well have all sat down for all the good it did the second time when he belted his home run. Still, they talk about the Ebbets Field bandbox. Mickey's homer was straight down the right-field line. He got a single on the same kind of hit in Flatbush on Friday.

No-Hitters Nothing New For Yank Pilot Stengel

By ED CORRIGAN
NEW YORK (AP) — While Don Larsen was outside standing before almost as many klieg lights as a Hollywood star, New York Yankees' Manager Casey Stengel sat in his cubicle off to the side of the dressing room following the big right-hander's no-hit, 2-0 perfect game over the Brooklyn Dodgers Monday. Case just kept shaking his head in bewilderment.

"Now, this isn't the first no-hitter I've seen," he said. "Remember I had Allie Reynolds when he threw one and I was over in the National League when that left-hander, what's his name (Johnny van Dusen), threw two in a row. During my playing days, I saw Rube Marquard throw one."

Stengel hasn't decided who will pitch Tuesday and he won't until almost game time. "First I want to see how Bob Turley and Johnny Kucks warm up," he said. "At first I was going with Turley, then when this happened I had about decided on Kucks. But when I talked to Jim Turner (Yank pitching coach), he decided to wait before deciding."

The Brooks used their "Boudreau Shift" against Mickey Mantle on the switcher's first two trips to the plate. They might just as well have all sat down for all the good it did the second time when he belted his home run. Still, they talk about the Ebbets Field bandbox. Mickey's homer was straight down the right-field line. He got a single on the same kind of hit in Flatbush on Friday.

Mantle was trying all the while to hit to left to cross up the shift and he did in the first, but it was a soft fly to Sandy Amoros in left field. Mantle kicked second base in disgust on the way out to his position. While you can't beat a no-hitter, the score might've just happened not to have my usual well have been 1-0 if Sandy Amoros had fielded Hank Bauer's single cleanly in the sixth. Andy Carey, who was on second base, had not even gotten to third when Sandy picked up the ball. But Sandy bobbled it momentarily and Carey got home. The consensus was that Carey was a dead duck if Sandy had made the play.

Brook pitcher Sal Maglie looked ready to throw a couple of games. He wasn't even warmed up. Every time a batter would linger getting to the plate, he'd begin throwing to catcher Roy Campanella. Jackie Robinson, the Brook third baseman, got most of the hoot calls of the day in the eighth when he tried to rattle Larsen by strolling out of the batter's box with two strikes on him.

Umpire Babe Pinelli, who handled the balls and strikes, showed no ill effects of being hit by a line drive off Gil McDougald's bat Sunday. "I'm an old fighter," grinned the veteran arbiter, "and I can take it in the stomach." On the subject of umpires, National League President Warren Giles said he has no intention of appointing a supervisor of umpires if Pinelli retires after the series.

"This was one we had to win," said Assistant General Manager Bill de Witt of the Yanks. "Ebbets Field presents a mental hazard and it might be asking too much for us to win two games there. Winning only one in Brooklyn will be tough enough."

Hank Bauer's vest-pocket analysis of Maglie: "If you can make Sal pitch the ball up above the ground, you have a chance to hit him. His high curve isn't anywhere near as effective as his low one. But he won't give you anything high that you can get your bat on." As for Larsen, the hero of the hour, before the game he was saying to a group of newsmen, just as casually as if he were headed for a picnic (which, it turned out, he was). I just happened not to have my usual fine now. These series games don't excite me any more than games during the regular season. If I have any luck, I'll do all right.

Plant your dollars in the right places... and they can grow more dollars for you. Any questions?

You: Yes, I have a question. How do you "plant" dollars?
We: By investing them in a good strong growing company... either by buying its bonds to get interest or its stock to get dividends.
You: And where do I find this good strong growing company?
We: The stocks and bonds of a great many are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.
You: But don't you have to be a plutocrat to buy stocks and bonds?
We: Good heavens, no. Two out of three shareholders have incomes under $7500 a year. In buying stock they've put their extra money to work to bring them extra income in addition to their jobs. Some are investing as little as $40 every three months through the Monthly Investment Plan.
You: How do I know which companies to choose?
We: Got money left over after paying the bills and providing for family emergencies? Next move is to get the facts about the company—profits, dividends paid, etc.
You: Which will grow money for me better—stocks or bonds?
We: When you buy bonds, the company owes you money. It promises to pay interest, usually at a fixed rate, and to return the amount of the loan. When you buy common stock you become part owner of the company and you share in its profits. If there are no profits there are usually no dividends. If profits are bigger your dividends are usually bigger. And if the company grows, both your income and the value of your investment can grow too.
You: Do I buy directly from the New York Stock Exchange?
We: No. You buy or sell through a broker. The Exchange itself doesn't buy or sell securities. It's the nation's great market place where the stocks and bonds of more than 1,100 leading companies are bought and sold by brokers for people like you.
You: Where do I start?
We: With our fascinating little free booklet "DIVIDENDS OVER THE YEARS" which lists more than 300 stocks on the New York Stock Exchange that have paid dividends every year from 25 to 108 years, showing which ones yield from 5% to 6% at recent prices, which have paid progressively higher dividends over the last ten years, which are most favored by financial institutions... and much more, including information about the convenient Monthly Investment Plan which enables you to invest as little as $40 every three months.
You: Where do I get that wonderful booklet?
We: Clip the coupon or drop in on the nearest Member Firm of the New York Stock Exchange. You'll get a cordial welcome there. They'll give you facts and advice and they'll help you to plan a sensible investment. Don't you think it's time to consider planting dollars to grow income? Send in the coupon now before you forget.

Stocks Up Slightly; Slow Trading Day

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market backed away considerably from an advance Monday but still remained narrowly on the upside.

It was the slowest trading day since the end of August with volume at 1,450,000 shares compared with 1,580,000 Friday.

An early advance which had put leading stocks ahead of the game by fractions to around 42 was gradually eroded in the later part of the session.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks which had been ahead 1/2 cent at noon was only 20 cents to the good at the close when it stood at $177.70. The industrials were up 20 cents to 20 1/2 cents and the utilities were unchanged.

After last week's partial rebound from a long decline, brokers detected an attitude of extreme caution among investors. News of increasing national income and export formed an encouraging backdrop for Monday's performance, as did the new record in steel production.

Preliminary Injunction

Delephant Bars Stromsburg From Acquiring Gas System

U. S. District Judge John W. Delephant has granted the Central Electric and Gas Company a preliminary injunction against the City of Stromsburg and a state court of condemnation.

Judge Delephant's order blocks temporarily an attempt by Stromsburg to acquire the local gas distribution system on the basis of the April 3, 1956, election.

It represents a first-round victory for Central which has contended the election was illegal because of improper notice and inadequate description of the property on the ballot.

The Condemnation Court, appointed by the Nebraska Supreme Court, had scheduled an Oct. 8 hearing in preliminary proceedings to determine the value of the property to be acquired.

The Federal Court order prevents further proceedings by Stromsburg or the condemnation court until further court order.

The plaintiff gas company also seeks a permanent injunction, for which a hearing date is yet to be set.

The election, challenged by Central, reversed a decision four years ago by the Stromsburg electorate, which turned down a similar proposal by two to one.

Plattsmouth Pair Put On Probation

Two Plattsmouth, Neb., men were placed on two years' probation by the Lancaster District Court, which suspended sentence on grand larceny charges.

Arthur Thomas Reed, 53, and Walter H. Gochenour, 48, had pleaded guilty to the Sept. 27 theft of some 700 feet of copper wire stored at the Consumers Public Power District transformer station at 84th and Leighton.

Judge John L. Polk placed the two men on probation with Adult Probation Officer George Meyer.

Notice to Contractors

Sealed proposals will be received by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, at the office of the City Clerk, up to 10 o'clock a.m., Central Standard Time, Wednesday, October 17, 1956, for the construction of an ornamental lighting system in Ornamental Lighting District No. 40, being in Curtis Drive from 42nd Street to Sheridan Boulevard in said city, according to the plans and specifications of the City Engineer on file in the office of the City Clerk.

Plans and specifications may be seen and blank proposals obtained in the office of the City Engineer.

The City Engineer's estimate of the cost of this ornamental lighting is $2,250.00.

Each proposal must be accompanied by a certified check for $100.00, made payable to Frank J. Miller, City Treasurer, as a guarantee of good faith.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all proposals and to waive any defect in proposals.

THEO. H. BERG, City Clerk.

Notice to Dealers in Automobiles

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, up to 10:00 o'clock A.M. Wednesday, October 10, 1956, for furnishing 11 automobiles for use of the City of Lincoln, in accordance with specifications for same on file in the office of the City Clerk.

Copies of the specifications may be obtained in the Purchasing Department. The estimate of cost for furnishing these automobiles is $18,000.00 F.O.B. Lincoln plus trade ins.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check in the sum of five (5) per cent of the total amount bid, made payable to the order of Frank J. Miller, City Treasurer, as a guarantee of good faith.

The City reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any defect in bids.

THEO. H. BERG, City Clerk.

Notice to Bidders

Sealed proposals will be received by the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, at the office of the City Clerk, Theat. Bldg., until 2 o'clock P.M., Central Standard Time, Thursday, October 11, 1956, at which time and place all proposals will be immediately and publicly opened and read for the furnishing and installing of a complete sound system for the Lincoln Municipal Auditorium as shown in this notice, and more fully explained in the complete plans and specifications on file with said City Clerk.

The work consists of furnishing all materials, labor, etc., necessary for the complete installation as specified.

The estimate of cost for this project is $25,000.00.

A performance bond, equal to 100% of the contract price, shall be supplied by the successful bidder as a part of his contract.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check or cashier's check, drawn on a bank which is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, or an acceptable bidder's bond with an authorized surety company as surety, in a sum equal to at least 5% of the amount bid, and made payable to Frank J. Miller, City Treasurer, of Lincoln, Nebraska, as guarantee that the bidder to whom the award is made will enter into contract and furnish the required bond.

Detail plans and specifications may be seen in the office of the City Clerk; Director of Parks, Public Property and Improvements, and the office of the Associated Architects, 236 Stuart Building, Lincoln, Nebraska.

Bids made upon blanks other than those furnished with the contract documents, or exact duplicates thereof, will be rejected.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive informalities in bids submitted.

The City also reserves the right to take up to 30 days for consideration of the bids received, during which time no bids may be withdrawn.

NORMAN ROCKWELL paints EISENHOWER

Here it is—on this week's cover of the Post—the portrait of the President as the trait of the magic brush of America's favorite artist could capture him.

The Post commissioned Rockwell to do this painting because his work is not only so human, but also uniquely authoritative.

by Joe Martin

Minority Leader Martin, the Republican spokesman, argues that peace and prosperity are more likely to continue under the Republicans than under the "socialist dogs" of the Democrats.
